

GILES FORCED TO ABANDON FLIGHT SNYDER AND GRAY LOSE APPEAL; MUST DIE

GOVERNOR IS FINAL RESORT OF DEFENSE ATTORNEYS' PLANS

Executive Clemency To Be Sought—Woman
Sees Counsel

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 23.—Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray must die in the electric chair during the week of January 9 next for the slaying of Albert Snyder, the woman's husband, the court of appeals announced today.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—"An appeal for executive clemency is practically the only remaining hope." This was the statement today of Samuel L. Miller, counsel for Judd Gray, jointly under sentence of death with Mrs. Ruth Snyder for murder of the latter's husband.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—"Well, that's another job for me," that was the comment today of Robert Elliott, Sing Sing prison executioner. He had been informed that the appeals of both Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray had been denied.

Although Elliott has maintained that executions do not worry him greatly, he said today he did not "look forward easily" toward executing Mrs. Snyder. Discussing his general attitude toward his work for the prison, he declared that he did not look upon himself as an individual, but "merely as a tool of the state and justice."

Meanwhile Dr. James Kearney, prison physician, after examining Mrs. Snyder, today pronounced her physically and mentally sound. He said she had recovered entirely from the shock she suffered upon receiving the news that her appeal had been denied. Gray, who appeared unmoved at the time, did not seem to be under any nervous strain, he said.

Edgar F. Hazelton, of defense counsel, spent about an hour visiting Mrs. Snyder last night. She sent him a telegram as soon as she was informed of the higher court's action, and was noticeably impatient until he arrived.

"I'm not lost yet. What time is my counsel coming?" She is quoted as saying between the time she sent the telegram and the time Hazelton arrived. Hazelton did not divulge at the prison the nature of his conference with his client. Principal Keeper John Sheehy today recounted in greater detail how he broke the news to the pair. He described the dialogue as follows:

"I have some bad news for you, and you might as well hear it now," Sheehy told Gray.

"I had rather expected it; thank you," Gray replied. Then Sheehy went to Mrs. Snyder and said almost the same thing to her.

"What does that mean?" Mrs. Snyder asked.

"It means," the principal keeper replied, "that six weeks from today, unless the governor does something for you, you will have to go in back." He nodded toward the door leading to the death chamber. Sheehy stated that it was a prison custom never to refer to "the chair" or to execution directly, and that the term "in back" generally was used to indicate the death chamber. He also declared that "bad news" was sufficient to inform an inmate of the death house that an appeal or a commutation had been denied.

ALLEGED JURY TAMPERERS WILL ANSWER TO CHARGES DECEMBER 5

Grand Jury's Possible Indictments Still Pending—
Clark Hearing May Be Postponed
Until Jury Acts.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The government today was gathering in the loose ends of its movement to send Harry F. Sinclair, New York oil magnate, and five others, including the internationally famous detective, William J. Burns, to jail for alleged tampering with the Teapot Dome oil conspiracy jury.

Sinclair, Burns, H. Mason Day, Sheldon Clark, W. Sherman Burns and Charles L. Veitsch must appear in the district supreme court on December 5 to show cause why they should not be judged in criminal contempt as a result of the employment of fifteen Burns operatives to maintain "an improper surveillance" over the Fall-Sinclair jurors.

Still hanging fire over them, and others, is the prospect that a federal grand jury will return indictments charging conspiracy to obstruct justice.

The only move scheduled by the district attorney's office today was the procurement of a postponement of a preliminary hearing for Sheldon Clark, set for November 25, before a U. S. commission.

Burkshaw planned to ask Commissioner Turnhage for a continuance on the ground the grand jury had not completed its investigation into the activities of the Burns men. Morgan Beach, Clark's attorney, is expected to agree in view of Justice F. L. Siddons' action in citing his client for contempt.

Siddons, it is believed, today will discharge from further service his special committee of two, appointed to ascertain whether there was reason for the court to make contempt citations as a result of the mistrial in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy case.

PACIFISTS OPPOSE NATIONAL ANTHEM

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 23.—Abolishing patriotic songs of a martial nature, including "The Star Spangled Banner," in the public schools was the program before the New Jersey Federation of Women's Clubs today as a means of eliminating war.

"At Christmas time," said one speaker, "children sing songs asking Santa Claus to bring them swords and guns. This also ought to be stopped."

PRESIDENT CALLES DONATED $100,000 TO BRITISH MINERS

Charge Executive With Helping Strikers Under Cover

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—President Calles contributed $100,000 of Mexican government funds to aid the British coal miners in their strike for higher wages, the Washington Herald asserted today in continuing its expose of Mexican activities in the affairs of other nations.

Diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Soviet Russia were broken after a raid on Soviet headquarters disclosed the part Moscow had played in financing the British strike, but the British government did not suspect that Mexico, too, was contributing to industrial unrest under its nose, the Herald declared.

The Herald reproduces the text of a presidential order to the Mexican finance minister, which it says was secured from the secret files of the Mexican foreign office, as follows:

"Presidential order, June 24, 1926: you will please order the citizen financial agent of Mexico in New York to transfer by cable and through the minister of Mexico in London the sum of $100,000 to be delivered to the fund of the coal miners union as a secret aid contributed by the government of Mexico to the maintenance of the ideals of the proletariat.

"Take care that these orders be issued in special code and with the necessary safeguards of transmission. (signed) P. Elias Calles."

Don. H. Gruening, a former American newspaper man and close friend of Calles, also was sent to London to report directly to Mexico City on the progress of the strike, the Herald asserts.

TABER BLAMED FOR FARM RELIEF FAILURE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 23.—Responsibility for the failure of farmers to agree upon a federal farm relief policy was attributed today by Charles T. Truax, state director of agriculture, to the "influence" of L. J. Taber, Barnesville, recently re-elected master of the National Grange. Taber is a Republican and Truax, a Democrat.

"Sooner, or later, farmers will insist on placing the responsibility for the state of affairs and the leaders of the Grange will do well to consider their position," said Truax.

Truax said the action of the grange in endorsing the debenture plan for farm relief was due to "Taber's influence," according to Truax, farmers and co-operative marketing organizations were

Unusual Marital Con- tract Stirs Up Comment

By J. C. JOHNSON
GIRARD, Kan., Nov. 23.—An 18-year-old girl, junior in the Girard high school and a 19-year-old youth, sophomore in the University of Kansas, were the principals in this state's first companionate marriage.

The bride is Miss Josephine Haldeman-Julius, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Haldeman-Julius, owners of the Haldeman-Julius Publishing Co., of this city.

The groom is Aubrey Clay Roselle, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Roselle.

A DEFINITION
NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of the Free Temple of New York, defines companionate marriages as follows:

"It throws away the lock of wedlock, and ends the wed. It does not mean marriage with birth control, but birth control without marriage. It is outwardly reform and inwardly abolition. It cannot be marriage as long as its essence is childless. It means change your partner—marriage means change yourself."

Roselle, The elder Roselle operates the Girard Creamery here.

The parents of the girl are exponents of companionate marriages.

Not a Trial Marriage.
Mrs. Haldeman-Julius, commenting on the marriage of her daughter, says:

"One hesitates to use the term companionate marriage only because it is so often and willfully misunderstood and apt to be confused in the public mind with trial marriages, which is the exact opposite."

"But," she hastens to add, "for the sake of all other young people who are ready to marry, but whose parents are reluctant to take what I feel is a fair attitude, neither Josephine and Aubrey, nor Mr. Haldeman-Julius and myself wish to avoid a term which we feel strongly expresses a sane and wholesome attitude."

"For any marriage, in which neither are only in their tender years, 'I fully believe,' she says, 'that their husband or wife assumes the financial responsibilities, is, strictly speaking, a companionate marriage.'"

Mrs. Haldeman-Julius is firm in her belief that young people should be permitted to marry even if they

PROPOSE CABINET TO KING ALBERT

BRUSSELS, Nov. 23.—A tentative coalition cabinet, composed of Liberals, Catholics and Christian Democrats, was submitted to King Albert today by Premier-Designate Jaspar. If ratified it will succeed the Socialist government that resigned Monday.

The new ministerial slate omits Socialists and, if the government, as planned, is installed in power, it will meet with strong opposition from the Socialists in parliament. The Socialists leaders have already called a caucus to plan an aggressive opposition to any new cabinet that does not contain Socialist representation.

MONEY TALKS

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Opinions of companionate marriage might be had for the asking—but not from Bernard Shaw.

The famous wit, upon being asked his opinion of the Josephine Haldeman-Julius and Aubrey Clay Roselle matrimonial arrangements, at first refused, saying:

"I'm afraid I'd rather not talk about it. It's no joke, you know. It is not a matter you can dismiss with three words."

However, as an after thought, Shaw dismissed it with five figures. He said:

"I'll tell you—I'll give you my opinion for $75,000."

BELIEVE BOMB BLAST LAUNCHES GANG WAR

Tension Tightened As Vice-Ring Building Is Wrecked—Believe Explosion Was Warning From Capone Gang.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—The tension in Chicago's threatened gang war was more strained today following a bomb explosion which last night wrecked a notorious rendezvous belonging to the Bertse-Skidmore vice syndicate.

Special detectives assigned to the task of preventing a renewal of the deadly machine gun feuds, believe the place was blown up as a warning to the Bertse faction not to poach on gambling and vice territory south of Madison St.

It is said that the last "peace treaty" agreed to by gang leaders, parceled off sections of the city allotting each faction a section in which to conduct "business" without interference from other factions. Madison Street was said to be the dividing line north and south.

Authorities charge gunmen in the employ of "Scarface Al" Capone, south side "vice regent," were responsible for the blast.

Fifteen girls, said to have been inmates in the wrecked building, fled in panic. None was seriously injured.

Lieutenant John Ryan, touring the near west side soon after the blast, arrested three men "on suspicion." They were Italians, known to be friends of Scarface Al Capone.

PARTY LEADERS DRAW LINES FOR FIGHT ON CORPORATION TAX CUT

Republicans Want Reduction To Apply On 1927
Incomes—Democrats Say Corporations have Already Passed Tax On

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—A new political fight over tax reduction broke out today when Republican spokesmen announced their determination to make the forthcoming corporation income tax cut apply to 1927 incomes.

Accepting the challenge, Democratic leaders immediately declared that they would battle this plan until the bill finally goes to President Coolidge.

While Republicans asserted that it is a mere matter of justice to adopt this proposal, the Democrats declared that it actually means handing back $175,000,000 to corporations which they have already passed on to the ultimate consumer in increased prices.

With the total tax reduction tentatively fixed at $235,820,000 the house ways and means committee today planned to put the finishing touches on the bill and send it to congress on Dec. 5, the first day of the coming session.

"The reduction ought to be made effective in the present calendar year," said Rep. Chindblom, (R) of Illinois, member of the committee. "Reductions have always been made on this basis, and the action we are taking applies to the present year."

"I believe business will be stimulated by tax reduction, which is an added reason for applying it as soon as possible. Whether the tax is passed on or not depends upon competitive conditions."

Rep. Collier, (D) of Mississippi, also a committee member, declared that it would be "an outrage to make the tax cut effective on 1927 incomes."

"The corporations have passed this tax on to the consumer, and we would not be giving the money back to those who paid the tax," he said. "The tax cut should be effective January 1, 1929." This view is taken by Rep. Garner, (D), of Texas, ranking minority member of the committee, while Rep. Watson, (R), of Pennsylvania, an administration supporter on the committee, declared for the 1927 cut plan.

Republican leaders hope to pass the bill by March 15, the date of the first payments on this year's income tax. The Democratic plan would delay the cut until after the 1928 presidential election.

The reductions proposed by the committee are: corporation income tax, 13 1/2 to 11 1/2 per cent, $150,000,000; exemption of corporations with income of $2,000 or less, $12,000,000; automobile purchase tax, cut from 3 to 1 1/2 per cent, $33,000,000; capital stock transfer tax cut in half, $8,337,000; repeal of tax on sale of produce on exchange, $2,855,000; repeal of tax on cereal beverages, $198,000; reduction of wine tax to pre-war level, $410,000.

AIRMAN RETURNS TO CALIFORNIA AFTER PLANE TURNS OVER

Spin Causes Briton To Lose Flight Instruments

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 23.—Captain Frederick A. Giles, British aviator, who started on a flight to Hawaii from San Francisco, yesterday, today was at San Simeon, Cal.

Approximately eight hours after he took off in his Hess Bluebird biplane, Giles brought his machine to earth 275 miles north of here.

Giles estimated he was about 500 miles at sea when his machine went into a spin. His plane, he said, turned upside down and his supplies and navigating instruments fell into the sea.

The British aviator said he gained control of his machine only after a desperate effort. With his supplies and instruments gone, there was nothing left for him to do but to strike out for the mainland.

Guessing his directions, Giles headed his machine eastward and made a perfect landing on the Hearst ranch.

Undismayed by the mishap, Giles said he would again try the flight to Hawaii, the first lap of a proposed air journey to New Zealand.

"I am going to repair the ship and fly her back to San Francisco," he said. "And then as soon as the moon is full, I can get new charts, I'll be off again."

Giles declared he never expected to reach land after his machine went into a spin.

My center section bracing wires had snapped so I dumped my main gas tanks to lighten the strain," he said. "I figured my chances of getting back to land were just about zero. I struck the coast about sixty miles north of where I landed."

Giles is of the opinion that his experience solves the fate of the planes lost in the Dole flight.

"It was only by the sheerest luck that I pulled through with my biplane," he asserted. "Had I been flying a monoplane, much less stable than my type of plane, I am afraid that I wouldn't have been able to pull myself out of it."

Giles said the weather was ideal until he reached a point about 300 miles at sea. Then, he said, he ran into weather which he described as being "utterly foul."

"The air pockets I encountered were terrific," he said. "I battled against them continually. Finally my ship dropped into one of them and then my real fight began."

TRADES BOOZE FOR ESSENTIALS OF LIFE

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Nov. 23.—One source from which some striking union miners have been securing their supplies during eight months of idleness had been revealed today following conviction of William Grant on a bootlegging charge.

Grant admitted in court that he had been trading moonshine whisky for foodstuffs, which are working the mines, in exchange for hams, bread and flour. He was fined $500 and costs and sentenced to the county jail.

HUNTER WOUNDED

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—George Wallace, 28, Cleveland, was reported in a critical condition at Mt. Sinai hospital here today, following a hunting accident near Burton, Ohio. Burton authorities said Wallace was shot in the abdomen when a companion's gun was accidentally fired. William M. Alexander, of Cleveland, the companion, who said he thought his gun was unloaded, was exonerated of all blame.

MEXICO SIESTA WAR OVER U. S. HABIT OF "EIGHT HOUR" DAY

TOWNSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 23.—Merchants in all Mexico were plunged into a "siesta" war when a movement was begun by Chambers of Commerce in the republic to follow the eight-hour business custom of the United States and Europe.

The movement is to be laid before the secretariat of industry and commerce, and old-fashioned merchants are protesting because it abolishes the two-hour "siesta" after lunch, a custom which began in Mexico in the days of Hernan Cortez.

The innovators propose to follow the eight-hour system common in American business houses having employees arriving and departing at the same time, and giving them only one hour for lunch.

The "old-timers" are accustomed to having their employees arriving at various hours of the day and to having all of them take a substantial "siesta."

The sleep-period has resulted in the closing of all business houses for two hours. Usually, if one wishes to purchase an article, he must do so before one o'clock and after three. No business transactions are recorded during these hours.

The Chambers of Commerce propose to establish the new law not only in Mexico City, but all over the republic; hence the protest.

NOTES ON—YOU KNOW WHAT
I am not unlike the street car motorman who took a long street car ride on his day off. Two of the most interesting days of my vacation last summer were spent at the Santa Barbara Cottage Hospital studying the methods of Dr. Sansum, the medical head of the institution.

The patients I was most interested in were the reducing patients. The hospital is a general hospital, but most of its patients probably are diabetics. Therefore the subject of reducing has been thoroughly studied there. You know the reason—I have told you lots of times. Over 75 per cent of the diabetics in middle age are overweight before the disease manifests itself. (Joslin says his diabetic patients average ten to the ton.)

But they have a surprising number of patients going there simply for reducing. I shouldn't say simply, for naturally those who are so much overweight that they require hospital or sanitarium care have developed other disorders as well. Dr. Sansum tells me that if they had rubbed stamp with the words "Obesity, High Blood Pressure, Constipation and Border-line diabetes," they would save much time in writing the case histories, for it would answer practically for all of the reducing patients.

As we were going the rounds, I met one patient—a Mrs. McCauley who had just come to the hospital from a three-mile walk. As the doctor introduced us he told me that she had weighed 285 and could hardly walk when she first came in. She was then down to 250, and still had over a hundred pounds to go. I remarked to Mrs. McCauley that I was a doctor, and she seemed to be so familiar. Hadn't she written for my reducing instructions? "If you are Dr. Lulu Hunt Peters," she responded, "I did, doctor, and I got a good start. But as I was so very much overweight, I took your advice to put myself under the personal supervision of a physician. After my loss of thirty-five pounds, I now feel that I can carry on by myself. Fortunately, I didn't have to learn any new methods, for Dr. Sansum's are the same as yours."

This is true, for Dr. Sansum's method, or that of any scientific physician, differs in no essential

HOME-MADE RADIO SET GETS HOLLAND

MECHANICSBURG, Ohio, Nov. 23.—Edward Locke, radio expert of this town, has picked up musical and vocal numbers from a station in Holland, he announced today. After trying in vain for about a week to ascertain the call letters of the station, he declares that he has made them out to be PCCL, at Kootwyk, Holland.

Locke has picked up radio programs from all parts of the world and he received the Holland station on a new low wave length set which he built himself. The program comes in between 8 and 9 o'clock in the morning, he says.

Whoops in Wall Puzzle Man BUTLER, Pa.—Screaming and scratching noises coming from the walls of his home annoyed S. B. Young for some time until finally, after having tried various methods of getting to the cause of the noise, he decided to cut a hole into the wall of his house and to find out what was there. To his surprise he found a screech owl reclining between the walls. It had gotten there through a chimney hole.

Dr. Sansum emphasizes to his reducing patients that they need a surprisingly small amount of food to live on because the insulating powers of their layers of fat prevent the loss of body heat and limit the activities. Because of this retention of body heat and the limitation of the activities, the food is not completely oxidized or burned for power and heat and deposited as fat.

Tomorrow: Unusual Thanksgiving Dinner.

The Old Boy:—
"Are you completely outfitted with all the Bows and Arrows you feel you will need for the hunting season? We'd sure like to take your order for a few dozen."

Farmer: "I've been studying on buying a half gross or so of arrows but since I've been looking at these LOW PRICES that Rawlins, the new Bow and Arrow maker has been making I kinda thought I'd try him out on a few. Are YOUS any BETTER?"
The Old Boy:—"Not ONE BIT better. Rawlins makes a Bow and Arrow that is just as good as WE ever made."

The Farmer:—"Well then if Rawlins makes just as GOOD a Bow and Arrow as you Old Boys make why SHOULDN'T I trade with him—when he makes them cheaper?"

The Old Boy:—"I don't agree with you that Rawlins can make them any cheaper. He may SELL them a bit cheaper for a short time in order to make a hit with you farmers who hunt and to get you in the HABIT of trading with him. But that's ALL."

Farmer: "Why didn't you Old Boys do that a long time ago if it works with Rawlins so well. Is it going to cost us extra money in order to buy of you Old Boys?"

Old Boy: "It needed some chap like Rawlins to WAKE US UP to our opportunities in making goods cheaper. TODAY we can sell just as cheap as RAWLINS because we are all UNDER ONE TENT and doing business as if we were ONE FIRM. And in OUR case we are making a FAIR PROFIT."

Farmer: "Well if I can get just as GOOD bows and Arrows as Rawlins sells and can buy them just as cheap certainly I'll buy of you OLD BOYS because it's a FACT that you were here FIRST and you LIVE HERE and spend your MONEY here. So wrap me up a couple hundred arrows."
Old Boy: "I thank you."

YOUTH CONVICTED ON MURDER CHARGE

MONTREAL, O., Nov. 23.—In the dramatic setting of the historic court of King's Bench, Gerard Filiatreault, 21 year old epileptic, convicted of the murder of Fablen Martin, suburban grocer, today was sentenced to hang on March 2.

Defense counsel had advanced the plea that, though Filiatreault committed the crime, he was insane, despite the evidence of epileptics to the contrary. On the verge of collapse, the boy, who manifested disinterest in the days of the trial by calmly sleeping in the dock, endeavored to read a statement declaring that if he committed the crime at all it was while he was mad and during a mental blank, as he had no recollection of the deed. The jurors quickly adjudged him sane by bringing in the guilty verdict.

H. AND A. EMPLOYEES

HOLD ANNUAL CELEBRATION
With its usual elaborate detail, the annual Thanksgiving party was held by the office employees of the Hoover and Allison Co., at the Knights of Pythias Castle, Tuesday evening. Eighty people, members of the main and lower offices and their families enjoyed the affair.

The committee in charge of the party and which was responsible for its success, with the co-operation of other members, was composed of Mr. Lawrence Landaker, Mr. Fred Coy, Miss Edith Need, Miss Ruth Alexander and Miss Laura John.

A banquet was served in the early evening, at prettily appointed tables in the banquet hall. Combined place cards and programs were found at each cover. The letters of the menu items were jumbled, furnished much amusement before the repast was served.

Miss Fay Ledbetter presided as toastmaster and short talks were given by various representatives of the firm. Songs, including a number of parodies, were sung during the banquet.

The program of the evening immediately followed the banquet and opened with a vocal solo by Miss Leona Keller. A "Hallelujah Chorus" was ably presented by Mr. Harry Williams and the Misses Helen Smith, Marjorie Weddle, Evelyn Eyer, Laura John and Mrs. Anna Williams.

A play, "Pat's Matrimonial Venture," was cleverly presented by Mr. Roy Spahr, in the title role, Miss Lucille Meahl and Miss Mary Wilson.

A specialty skit was given by Mrs. Harry Williams and Miss Marjorie Weddle which was well received. Miss Ruth Alexander gave a pretty vocal solo. A musical number "Side by Side," was given by Mr. Williams and the same chorus, closing the program with excellent finish. Miss Mary Heaton was the accompanist, and played for the grand march which opened the dancing party that was enjoyed the remainder of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shaw, this city, will be the attendants. The single ring ceremony will be used. The bride will be attractively outfitted in black and silver, with a corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. McFadden will go to housekeeping immediately at their furnished home on W. Second St. A family party will be held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wilson, Thanksgiving day, honoring the couple.

More than thirty guests arrived at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Simison, Cedarville, Sunday, to remind Mr. Simison of his birthday.

At the noon hour, all partook of the bountiful delicacies. The following guests were present: Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Rogers and family, Cedarville; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brock and family, Mrs. Elizabeth Brock, Jamestown; the Rev. and Mrs. H. Have You Acid Scalp?

If your hair won't keep the simplest wave for several days, there is probably too much acidity. A condition that causes hair to be stubbornly straight and stringy, and to lack all lustre. Acid scalp. From the hour you check this excessive acidity your hair will act and appear very different. It will arrange easily in any style that becomes, for it will have lovely softness, and all the sheen all healthy hair normally has. Dandruff will neutralize the acid, and actually dissolve every particle of dandruff scale. Your hair won't need anything else to keep it fresh, wholesome, and free from the least objectionable taint that is too often noticed in otherwise fastidious women.

Dandruff sells for only thirty-five cents at any drug store, and as only a few drops on comb or towel will do the work, a bottle lasts for weeks! —Adv.

REFORMED BEREAN CLASS

HOLDS ANNUAL PARTY.
The Reformed Church was the scene of a most attractive affair Tuesday evening when the members of the Berean Class entertained their families and friends at their annual Thanksgiving party.

A clever playlet, written and directed by Miss Esther Smith, was effective in weaving in story and song, in the telling of the thank-offering to be sent to a leper colony. The characters were well represented by Mrs. M. A. Smith, Mrs. William Fisher, Miss Mary K. Sutton and Mrs. W. J. Kennedy.

During the playlet, songs, descriptive of the nations in which leper colonies are located were introduced by Miss Helen Whittington, Mrs. Clarence Fisher, Mrs. Louis Hammett and Mrs. Frank Wolf.

As a fitting climax, the members of the class took part in a candle-light procession, carrying their small black barrels, containing their thank-offering. As the procession, singing "Oh For a Thousand Tongues," led by Mrs. Edwin Buck, passed to the front of the auditorium, the barrels were deposited in a keg placed on the platform.

At the close of the program, an ice course was served in the basement of the church, which had been tastefully decorated. An informal social time followed.

Regular Thanksgiving services will be held at the Christian Science Society Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend.

PLAINTIFF GIVEN $1,000 DAMAGES IN ALIENATION SUIT

Verdict for $1,000 damages was returned by a jury in Common Pleas Court Wednesday morning in favor of Leslie Wiley, against Thomas Trichoff, 27 W. Second St., Fairfield, O., in the former's $15,000 suit charging alienation of the affections of his wife, Edith.

The trial lasted all day Tuesday and the jury was dismissed late in the afternoon when no agreement had been reached after an hour's deliberations. Resuming its consideration of the case Wednesday morning, a verdict was reached at 9:45 o'clock.

Wiley set forth in his petition that he was married November 25, 1911 at Chillicothe and that he and his wife lived happily in Chillicothe and Osborn for thirteen years, until November 15, 1924, when they first became estranged.

Since that date, the defendant met his wife numerous times in a clandestine manner and prior to June 1, 1925, while rooming at Wiley's house, took advantage of plaintiff's wife, it was charged.

Wiley set forth that he and his wife and child, Jackson L., moved from Fairfield to Dayton in June 1927 to escape the defendant, and that Trichoff, not knowing the residence address of Mrs. Wiley in Dayton, wrote letters to her in his name and in the name of friends in Osborn and Fairfield.

Personnel of the jury: William Phillips, Pearl Bickett, Perry Thomas, Ervin Harner, W. F. Harner, Anna Banks, J. B. Harner, Catherine Osterly, Margaret Harner, Walter Graham, Harger Hartsook and Perry Romsport.

EXPLAINS MAKING OF SHOES BEFORE XENIA KIWANIS

Xenia Kiwanis were given an idea of the Xenia Shoe Manufacturing Co., as a civic asset and a factory of great scope, as a result of the talk of Henry C. Flynn, member of the firm, at the Elks' Club, Tuesday night.

Mr. Flynn's talk was confined to an explanation of the manufacture of shoes and the scope of the local factory. He displayed various types of leather used in the manufacture of women's shoes and showed samples of the latest styles.

He gave details of the cost of manufacturing shoes and showed how the change in styles affects the cost of production. The output of the local factory is growing yearly, he pointed out and shoes are shipped to all parts of the United States and foreign countries. Three hundred people are now employed at the factory, he said, and gave details of the average payroll for the concern.

His talk followed the dinner meeting and was well received by the club.

Editor of Gazette:

I notice in the police reports of your paper, numerous arrests of motorists fined or bonds forfeited. Does the mayor and arresting officer receive fees from the above? If so I think that the state made an overwhelming veto of such a practice.

The correspondent above is in error. Xenia's municipal court is not a fee court. They mayor and members of the police department receive fixed salaries not in any way dependent upon the number of arrests or the amount of fines. For this reason Xenia's municipal court and police do not come under the criticism that has been directed at fee courts and fee officers.—The Editor.

"FLAPPER GRANDMOTHER" WAS DOG-GONED GOOD SAYS CRITIC

If finer amateur performances of "The Flapper Grandmother," presented under auspices of the Central High Parent-Teachers' Association, than the one which took place Tuesday night at Jean B. Elwell Auditorium are given then we are ready to undertake any journey in order to see them.

When the producers bill it as a "musical play in three acts" they speak incorrectly. It should have been labeled a "rollicking farce comedy in three spasms." Rollicking is the word. It is exceptionally funny, because the fun-making springs from clever situations and because the cast is uniformly excellent.

In the first place the title alone is intriguing and the play is just as intriguing in the title. The comedy is replete with action and hilariously funny situations.

The central figure in the play is Maggie Pepper, the "flapper grandmother," a role that is capably filled by that excellent actress, Miss Helen Hurley. But the prima donna is outshone by one of the minor characters.

The transformation of the grandmother into the well-equipped flapper type girl of today was exceedingly clever in its work out. But the surprise of the evening was the transmigration of Belinda Spriggins, a part enacted by Miss Alice Foley in the most approved style.

What a whale of a difference a few cents make. Old-fashioned Maggie invests in Teapot Dome oil stock. It bubbles over and she finds herself wealthy. Accompanied by her young granddaughter, she takes a trip to Europe and both return transformed into very flapperish individuals.

The emphasis in the early part of the evening in contrast to the modern sister was a scream. The characterization of Belinda was not overdone, and the poor younger sister seemed hopeless until she joined the pilgrimage of the grandmother and became created into a modern girl, of the "flaming youth" type.

The extremes of emotional contrast made the characterization a revelation of histrionic abilities unforeseen in the budding actress who took the part of Belinda. Indeed the play could easily have been renamed, "The Transformation of Belinda."

Miss Hurley was capably supported by William Horner as Dr. Thomas Joy.

The show was off to a good start with a clever act by Miss Helen Ford and Robert Owens, portraying the characters of Lena Spriggins and Jimmy Swift, respectively. Assisted by a fine chorus of girls, this team gave songs.

An uncommonly good act was put on by Miss Foley and John Sutton, the latter Bobby Smith. Their lines were funny and their characterizations were even funnier.

The high spot was reached when Belinda went to Paris with grandma and they broadened their outlook on life. In the second act Belinda turned out to be every inch a Parisian.

Mrs. Fred Snyder and Harry Higgins, as Mat Spriggins, and Andrew Spriggins, the middle-aged couple, played their parts adroitly and provided an endless round of amusement.

Isadore Hyman, as Count "Seek-em Rich," who trailed Grandma Pepper back from Europe, with matrimonial intentions, was in his element, and his brother, Arthur, as Dick Tate, a policeman, gave a fine portrayal.

Other hits of the show included Harry Kiernan as Rastus Jones and George Swartz, as Lily White, the sweetheart of the colored porter. These two are always popular and this occasion was no exception.

Miss Esther Ford interpreted a dance of the Elf with the Dummies in finished style. Margaret Snyder as Eve, the forgotten child, was fine.

The choruses were especially good, particularly the Rag Dolls, eight tiny tots, which included Barbara Lane, Barbara Ann Yockey, Beatrice Robb, Mary Ann Balder, Mary Ledbetter, Janet Chamberlain, Ruth Waddle and Katharine Wade.

Debutante flappers were Marguerite Zeller, Helen Currie, Ruby Johnston, Rachel Douthett, Esther Ford, Dorothy Devore, Helen Street and Helen Spahr. The "Oh, Oh, Lena" chorus was composed of Helen Hill, Jean Marshall, Florence DeMint, Dora Hayward, Frances Hamlin, Helen Benbow, Elizabeth Irwin, and Margery Jones. "Door knobs" included Betty Savage, Betty Jane Stark, Georgia Barnes, Dorothy Penham, Marjorie Snyder, Evelyn Jones, Helen Lewis and Marjorie Powell. The "jelly beans" were Roger Chambliss, Lloyd Knick, Paul Collins, Russell DeMint and Archer Maxwell. Mattresses included: Goldie Grabbit, Polly Perkup, Fanny Findum, Hetty Hookitt, Susie Socken, Millie Markdown, Jenny Jerket and Betty Bysom, if these names mean anything to you.

The play was directed by Miss Anna Lee Deyer, representative of The Wayne P. Sewell Producing Co., Atlanta, Ga., the producing company. Music and novelties were by Hattie Jane Dunaway. Miss Emma LaMar, at the piano, interpreted the music perfectly. The high school orchestra furnished music between acts.

The play was given Tuesday night before an audience that filled the auditorium to capacity. It will be repeated Wednesday night. Now if those who have not seen it will do their part, all will be well, as the comedy is well worth seeing. P. W. F.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. —Adv.

COLLEGIANS WILL PLAY FOR BIG REVUE

Turner's Collegians will furnish music for the Artists and Models Revue, November 28, at East High Auditorium. This orchestra has furnished music for dances, private parties, clubs and local programs, including the Xenia Automobile Show.

The Collegians include: Messrs. Turner, banjo; Jamerson, horn; Buford, tuba; L. Phoenix, drums; J. Phoenix, piano; W. Scott, cornet; Turner, manager. Special music and surprise numbers will be carried out for this unique performance, each musician having a solo number and the orchestra complete playing all the music used by the company.

GET RID OF YOUR FAT

Thousands of others have gotten rid of theirs by my simple and efficient method of fat reduction without starvation diet or burdensome exercise, often at a very rapid rate and WITHOUT PAYMENT until reduction has taken place.

I am a licensed practicing physician and have made a careful study of the physiological requirements of the human body. This has enabled me in my opinion to produce not only a loss of weight without harm and an improvement in health, but with it an alleviation of all of the troublesome symptoms which frequently accompany and often are a direct result of overweightness, such as shortness of breath on slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, etc., not to speak of the relief from the embarrassment of being too stout. Stout persons suffering from such diseases as Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Eczema, Asthma and high blood pressure are greatly relieved by a reduction of their superfluous fat.

My treatment will relieve that depressed, tired, sleepy feeling, giving you the renewed energy and vigor which come as a result of the loss of superfluous fat. If you are over stout do not postpone but sit down right now and send for my FREE TRIAL TREATMENT and my plan whereby I am to be PAID ONLY AFTER REDUCTION HAS TAKEN PLACE if you so desire.

Does illness keep you from your work?

A GIRL who earns her living—whether in store, office, factory or home—realizes the necessity of regular attendance at her place of employment. For this reason she works on day after day. When she becomes tired out and run-down, she feels that she must keep at her work without taking time to rest.

Thousands of girls have found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored them to a normal physical condition, and has made them fit for work. These two women testify to that fact:

HEALTHY AND STRONG

Silverton, Oregon:—"I am writing to tell you how much your medicine has helped me. I was doing cannery work, canning, sealing, etc., but had to quit work when sick as I would be so weak I could hardly walk across the room. A friend of mine told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have found relief when sick and it helps me more each time. Every one says I am a healthier and stronger girl. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends." Julia Schmidt, 113 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon.

LOOK AS YOUNG

Fruitdale, South Dakota:—"I felt badly. It seemed like my back broke all to pieces and I couldn't stoop down to get anything from the floor. Then a friend told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So I did, and it sure has helped me. I can work all day long and I feel so good. I am 38 years old and I look just as young as if I were 20. I am glad to answer letters from any one about this medicine because it has done me good." Mrs. Francis P. Fajardo, Box 31, Fruitdale, South Dakota.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving Day has become as distinctive almost as the Fourth of July. It is rooted in American institutions reaching back to the fundamental principles upon which the nation was founded. Efforts have been made to find an origin for the observance among the ancients. It has been traced back to the Hebrew Feast of the Tabernacles, to the great harvest feast Thesmophoria, to the Roman Cerealia and to the English Harvest Home. It may be that there is something in common between the latter and the first Thanksgiving Day in America, which was observed at Plymouth immediately after the first harvest of the Pilgrims in 1621. But whatever its origin the day took root in American custom. The Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1630 formally adopted the plan of the Pilgrims. Connecticut followed suit in 1639. That the spirit behind the designation of a day of general thanksgiving was not racial, or rather that it became common to the pioneers of all races and nationalities who had cast in their lot with the nation builders of New England, is shown by the fact the Dutch in New Netherlands in 1644 observed the Thanksgiving Day of their English-speaking brethren. During the war of independence one or more Thanksgiving Days in each year, except in 1777, were appointed by the Continental Congress, and the executives of the various Colonial governments were asked to direct the observance of these days in their jurisdictions.

Then, a few months after the organization of the new American government under the Constitution, George Washington appointed Thursday, November 26, 1789, as "a day of public thanksgiving and prayer to be observed by acknowledging with grateful hearts the many and signal favors of Almighty God." The proclamation exhorted the people "to beseech Him to pardon our national and other transgressions, to promote the knowledge and practice of true religion and virtue and to grant unto all mankind such a degree of temporal prosperity as He alone knows to be best." This was the first national observance of Thanksgiving Day.

In 1795 Washington made a similar designation. At the close of the War of 1812, President Madison, in response to a resolution of Congress, set apart a day for thanksgiving. In 1817, New York, by proclamation of her governor began the observance of the day. It had not yet, however, become a fixed national holiday. Opposition to it was offered in some of the southern states as "a relic of Puritanic bigotry," but by the late 50's the custom had made such headway that proclamations appointing a day of Thanksgiving were regularly issued by the governments of 25 states and two territories. Then, in 1864, President Lincoln appointed the fourth Thursday of November as a day of national thanksgiving by official proclamation. Since that time each president has followed the example thus set, and Thanksgiving has become a fixed, annual event in the calendar of the United States and of its possessions.

The day is observed, of course, in various ways, some of them not always in keeping with the spirit which prompted the original designation. Its observance has spread far beyond the national boundaries, and in London, in Paris, in Berlin, and in the far-off Orient, on the appointed day, Americans gather in church and banquet hall in observance of the day. If it be true that the religious significance of the day is sometimes lost sight of in the more popular turn given to the method of its observance, it remains a fact that there is still a high value in such a day of national stock taking, when, amidst the feasting and merry making and the post prandial acclaim of our national greatness, serious thought may be, and is, given to the steadily advancing happiness and prosperity which has been the lot of the people of America through the long stretch of years between the first Thanksgiving of bleak New England, and the year of peace and plenty and promise in which Thanksgiving of the year 1927 will be observed.

FAITH

A real estate man known to the writer has done two million dollars' worth of business in a comparatively short time. Much of that time conditions have not been good for the real estate business. At least that is what other real estate men said. This man says that enthusiasm, belief in the thing you are doing, faith in your own business and in the thing you have to sell is the answer. He has done more than other men because he has believed more than other men. He has had more faith than other men.

LIVING FOREVER

If our whole conception of life is enlarged by the few years that we are to live upon the earth, we have a small appreciation of life. If we are not building for a future beyond our own days we are not building much. Men crave immortality. Men cannot live forever on this earth but they can greatly extend the value of their lives, here and now, by building beyond their own little day. They can achieve immortality by their works. And how are men best and longest remembered? Not by their accumulation of wealth. They are longest and best remembered—they achieve their immortality—by their service to others. He who helps most lives the longest.

WOULD YOU BE RICH?

So many want to be rich. Are you sure you want to be rich? Don't you get your greatest happiness from doing the every-day things that bring you a living? Aren't the very things—at least some of them—that you have to do because you are not rich, the things that bring you your greatest content, your greatest peace of mind? Think of your life without the necessity of life without the necessity of earning a living, without the necessity of work. Would it be a full, complete, happy life?

The Daybook

OF A

New Yorker

By
Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—A recent issue of one of the weeklies had a cigarette advertisement, which was the first public admission, to my knowledge, that women smoke. The ad was embellished by a sketch of two girls arguing over the relative merits of various smokes, and although to the average reader the piece looked innocent enough, it really marked a revolutionary change in the attitude of tobacco firms. It is commonplace enough, the idea of women smoking, in the big cities of the country. But of course there are vast stretches, in the middle west particularly, where a cigarette in a feminine hand is still the badge of infamy. So the advertising department of that cigarette manufacturing company braced a storm of angry letters from Kansas and Iowa when it o. k'd the proofs of that copy.

On Broadway, among the Two Hundred and Empty Umph streets, is a hopeful sign reading "Subway Entrance." The subway at this point has been in course of construction longer than I like to remember, and I imagine the meaningless sign is a source of constant irritation to people in the neighborhood.

You can walk a mile for a mailbox in Manhattan—and even then you may not be lucky enough to find one. In nearly every other place where I've lived, the mailbox has been a commonplace, a ready convenience. But in New York the postal higher-ups are evidently stingy about installing collection boxes. Time and time again I have trailed aimlessly around City Hall Park, seeking a slot for an important letter. And I always end up, tired and very much exasperated, by posting it in the box inside the Post Office building, or at the crowded post boxes in the small Westchester towns, in Brooklyn and the Bronx.

Once on a time it was fine, lousy thing to be a dramatic critic in New York City. Occasionally such a dignity could draw down a pair of seats for a friend, visiting town, or for his boss, the managing editor. Now so great is the popularity of the theater, the critic shows off his influence by assisting his acquaintances to buy seats. Thus, friends of mine recently succeeded in buying, through the personal help of a reviewer, matinee tickets for "Rio Rita." And for a month in advance.

Double feature at the neighborhood movie house often achieve humorous title combinations. In the Bronx yesterday I saw this one: "THE CRUISE OF THE HELICON. SWIM, GIRL, SWIM!"

I like the city in the rain. You can only crawl across town in a taxi, but if you are wearing a rubber coat and are not burdened with an umbrella, you may enjoy the glimmer of reflections on the wet pavements, the giddy blur of green and red lights in high up bronze traffic towers. Most people carrying umbrellas, I find, are exceedingly inconsiderate. Head down, weapon poised, they are more likely than not to charge down the wrong side of the walk, and the deadly is the traffic jam of pedestrians carrying these webbed staffs of destruction.

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly

Still on the Deep Blue Sea. These English are staid folk who believe in going to bed fairly early even on shipboard. The bar closes at 11 o'clock and by midnight the waiters are turning out lights to discourage everybody from remaining longer in the main lounging room. By that time the decks are deserted and even sailors have mostly disappeared. I suppose somebody must stay up all night, to keep this brave craft to its course, but to all appearances, after midnight, this is nothing but a floating rest cure.

My life I have been trying to find somebody willing to sit up with me and talk until I feel inclined to go to bed. When others are asleep and the noise and hubbub of the day have subsided, then, it seems to me, is the best time for congenial spirits to get together and talk over the state of the universe and see if something can't be done.

What is more depressing than having to go to bed for lack of anything to do, when you feel like sitting up?

I have seen little drunkenness aboard this ship and that entirely confined to my fellow countrymen. The great trouble with the average American's drinking is that he doesn't seem to know how to enjoy a jag after he gets it. He becomes either sullen and stupid or else his hilarity takes the form of pointless screaming.

Two of the most consistent drinkers aboard are a thin little man from Ohio and his fat wife. She is so over-sized and walks with such a duck-like waddle that I may hardly blame her husband for wishing to escape from her.

THE GREAT HUMAN PUZZLE

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

An Impossible Friendship

Mr. Rattler wound himself up into rings until he looked like a heap of automobile tires, one piled upon the other. Then he reared his long, flat head and looked admiringly down upon himself.

"S-s-s! I certainly do like to dress as a Serpent of my position should. Nothing fancy, how I should hate to have to wear a frill like Lizard, or drag behind me a sweeping tail as vain Peacock does, or carry a house on my back, however beautiful the shell may be, as does poor old Turtle! Neat and trim and as clean as a pin, that's I! No feathers for me. I should feel too hot, and no tail that sticks up straight or hangs behind. I am satisfied with a suit as smooth as silk, not a wrinkle in it, and with spotsches of color that would make the brightest butterfly dull with envy! Say, Boy, don't you think I'm graceful?"

Rattler wriggled all over—from the tip of his tail to the top of his sleeky head. How did he do it? Peter shivered as he watched, but he had to tell the truth: "You are graceful, and beautiful, too, and maybe if you will tell me more about yourself I shall learn to like you. But, you see, I have heard about so many dreadful things you have done that I can't quite feel you are my friend, even though you say so! I darsay if it were not for the Lizard's tail I should have run away long ago."

"To be sure you would have! If you hadn't gone while the going was good you would never have gone at all!" and the Serpent made that curious rattle that gave Peter want to take to his legs. He stood his ground, though, and changed the subject.

"What did you do with your old suit of clothes, Rattler. And why are you blind when you shed your skin?"

"Two very sensible questions,"

Boy, and you shall know the answer to each in good time. Shall I curl up at your feet while I tell you? But be sure to keep fast hold of the Lizard's tail, for without it nobody knows what might happen between us! A Rattler and a Two-Legs friends? Never! Not really! Fear may make a Serpent captive, fearlessness a Two-Legs master. But—and remember what I say, youngster—nothing that either of us can do can make the other like him. Come to think of it, Rattler hasn't a friend in the world. A good thing, too. He is better off without friends!"

some of the more obvious realities of life. But somehow I question the wisdom of a fat woman going in seriously for strong drink. Just being fat is surely enough for one woman to have to answer for.

This man confided to me that his wife was a mere slip of a girl when he married her. An experience like that must be downright discouraging. If a man deliberately marries a fat woman, he presumably knows what he is about and has nobody but himself to blame. But if she acquires the figure of a baby hippo after marriage, the husband can only assume that the Fates have a grudge against him.

A woman passenger named Louise Swing, an accomplished linguist, offered to help a young man who was trying to learn French from a little handbook. He came to such phrases as: How is your father? How is your mother? How is your uncle? "Suppose we just skip those," he suggested, "and pass on to something of more practical value. I don't care anything about her family."

think that if we do not go with boys that get our evening is spoiled. The boys that do not get are very dry and lacking in interesting conversation.

"Do you think that is wrong? We do not, because the other fellows that do not get are uninteresting. We do not think this ruins a girl's character. Do you?"

"We have been with boys of both kinds. The petting kind are lots more interesting. Please advise."

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—The congressional committee meetings we refer to, as in progress in Washington now, are not real congressional committee meetings.

They simply are meetings of congressmen-elect—strictly speaking, of no more consequence than anybody else. There are vacancies on these committees, too—gaps where members sat who lost out last election. They can't be filled until congress meets. But that doesn't matter much. A new committee member generally doesn't get the slightest attention paid to him for a long, long time.

Any way, this is true of the representatives' committees—so called, by courtesy.

The senate's "continuing body." Its members' terms expire only a third at a time. At least two-thirds of a senate's always available. Its regular committees hold over—of course, with vacancies, and subject to reconstruction when party majorities change.

The representatives go out, slick and clean, every two years. Theoretically, there's new deal every congress—speaker, committees and all.

These present meetings are of representatives who were re-elected, who were on certain committees when they were here before and who take it for granted they'll be on the same committees again.

Doubtless they're right, with the same old majority and the same minority as last time. Still, the witnesses they summon, and put under oath, and grill, and bother, and bullrag, could rattle on their hind legs and tell 'em to go hunt a warmer climate, with impunity, if they chose.

Congressman Bill Green's ways and means (also known as the taxation) aggregation and Representative Frank Reid's all star east of flood control experts have done the heavy committee work up to date, but others are getting together as December draws near.

Appropriation, a agriculture, naval affairs—these are just a few of the subjects that invariably require a lot of preliminary talking over.

Those five programs—revenue, I picked up an old Atlantic Monthly today and read this paragraph:

"Minor friction is the kind that produces the most showy results with the smallest outlay. You can stir up more electricity in a cat by stroking her fur the wrong way than you can by dropping her down a well."

You can ruffle the dearest member of your family more by asking him twice as much for the back door and emptied the pan under the refrigerator than his political opponents could possibly stir him with a gross libel on his personal veracity.

Someone has said that modern martyrdom is a series of small annoyances.

One of the things which makes for more martyrdom than almost any other annoyance is the idea which most people have in regard to time.

I have always wanted to write a screed on the time that I had lost because I was prompt. I had lost because I was prompt. I had lost because I was prompt. I had lost because I was prompt.

The woman who is always late for a dinner engagement may be the most entertaining woman in the world, but her hostess hates her with a deadly hatred.

Like every other conventional dolt, she goes to a lax way in which some people regard their engagements makes them more disliked than though they consistently were found breaking the decalogue. Indeed, I heard a woman say that she could stand bad manners, and she could stand much better than she could stand bad manners, and she could stand much better than she could stand bad manners.

A noted Frenchman has said: "The science of stopping in time is much neglected." This should be told to the clubwomen who are given ten minutes and taken twenty; the woman who keeps you at the telephone when your jelly is burning on the stove; the woman who begins to say "goodbye" to her hostess at 5 o'clock and is still at it at 6, although the hour of tea is long past and the hour of dinner immediately looming.

One of the great tragedies of marriage is that two people do not find out until after the fatal knot is tied that one is hasty and the other of deliberate mood. One will hurry to get ready to go places and one will never want to start preparations until the last minute.

When a woman who is always tardy is unequally coked with a man who is prompt the family atmosphere moves with an irregularity of rhythm that not only lends suspense but sometimes tragedy to the atmosphere.

Memo: "Tempus" never does anything else but "fugit" and it does that with celerity and dispatch.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MRS. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The Flattering Effect of Costume Jewelry

First let me say in this talk on the flattering effect of costume jewelry that I am not going into the matter of precious stones or the family jewels that are handed down from generation to generation. I am taking up jewelry for its decorative value alone, not its intrinsic worth.

Personally, I believe there is nothing that lights up the face as much as pearls do. This probably accounts for their continued popularity over a period of so many years. Just as a touch of pearls will set off a painting, pearls seem to bring out the beauty in every feature. They make your teeth look whiter, your complexion more transparent, your whole appearance softer.

Crystal brings out the light in your eyes and gives a glint to your hair. It is especially noted for these virtues, although all of the sparkling stones have a tendency to do likewise in varying degrees.

If you have blue eyes, you must be careful in the choice of blue jewelry. For instance, a dark blue stone will make your eyes seem lighter while one of the same color will make them seem darker. Brunettes can wear heavy gold jewelry, but for blondes silver jewelry, but for blondes silver jewelry.

As for bracelets, they are so much a matter of individual style, that I believe the only way for a woman to choose her bracelets is to study herself. In this sophisticated age, however, one must come so much into prominence that it is a natural step from jewelry to vanity cases. The subject of my next talk will be "Let Your Vanity Express You."

GREENE COUNTY NOT KEEPING PACE WITH TUBERCULAR FIGHT

"Greene County has not kept pace with the rest of the state in the fight against tuberculosis," Dr. J. A. Frank, chief of the bureau of hygiene, state department of health, told the Greene County Health League at its December session, Tuesday afternoon at the Court House.

"Other counties have begun to profit by the results of a campaign such as you are just now launching," he continued.

"A search for, and proper care of, pre-tuberculous children has resulted in preventing altogether the worst loss that tuberculosis causes, namely cases of tuberculosis meningitis, which is the only form of tuberculosis that is absolutely incurable.

"All the forms of tuberculosis in children steadily decrease wherever anti-tuberculosis work is done."

Dr. Frank complimented Dr. R. H. Grube, county health commissioner and the county board of health for providing a health nurse for Greene County next year. Xenia City, of course, will not have a public health nurse until the public demands one.

Dr. M. L. Marsh, Cedarville, Mrs. W. H. Finley, Xenia and Mrs. Lowe, Yellow Springs, head the committee on clinics in the seal sale drive. Mrs. Frank Thomas, New Jasper heads the committee on scales and charts; Dr. T. F. Myler, publicity and Mrs. Rosa Shaffer, nominations.

Yellow Springs, Cedarville, New Jasper, Xenia Town, and four Xenia organizations were represented at the meeting in addition to the Health League.

RELEASE OF DOTY ORDERED AT ONCE

PARIS, Nov. 23.—Minister of War Plainville today telegraphed an order to the commanding officer of the French Foreign Legion at Sidi-Bel-Abbes, Algeria, to release Bennett J. Doty, an American, from further duty at once.

Doty, whose home is in Memphis, Tenn., enlisted in the Foreign Legion in 1925 under the name of Gilbert Clare. He deserted in May 1926, while his regiment was stationed in Southern Syria after serving eleven months. He was sentenced to death. Later the sentence was commuted to eight years in prison. The French government pardoned Doty in September of this year after he had spent thirteen months in prison.

Doty was ordered to return to the Foreign Legion service and rejoined his regiment in October. Doty's counsel made a plea to the government for cancellation of his enlistment term on the ground that Doty's mother was ill in America.

JUNKERS PLANE IS BACK; TRIAL FAILS

HORTA, The Azores, Nov. 23.—The Junkers hydro-aeroplane D-1230 was back in Horta today after making an unsuccessful start across the Atlantic to Newfoundland.

After weeks of waiting for favorable weather, the plane took off last night but was forced to descend after going but a short distance. The craft was immediately brought back to Horta.

When the start was made, the D-1230 carried two new pilots who arrived four days ago from Germany and who replaced Fritz Loose who had piloted the plane on its initial flights from Germany. The new men are Johann Ristitz, famous Junkers flyer, and Alexander Von Bethelm.

Lilli Dillenz, Viennese actress, who hoped to be the first woman to cross the Atlantic by air, was aboard as a passenger. Fraulein Dillenz has been with the Junkers plane from the start.

TICKET AGENT MUST KNOW HIS ONIONS

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 23.—It is not altogether a matter of knowing the fare from Toledo to Climbing Hill, Ia., that qualifies Fred Dierks, of the New York Central ticket office here, for the ticket selling job which he has taken for a score of years.

Dierks declares returning lost articles, more often pajamas than anything else; informing the public where the best hunting may be had, and acquainting himself with the altitudes of railroad lines in the United States are among the duties that fall to him in running his office.

ANTIOCH STUDENTS VOTE FOR FOOTBALL

Continuance of football at Antioch College for at least three more years, has been approved by an overwhelming majority in a vote taken by the students of "A" and "B" divisions of the Yellow Springs school.

Proposal to place the gridiron sport on probation for this length of time was recently approved by a majority of 104 votes by "B" division students.

Division "A" students, who returned to school last Monday, also voted on the subject with a majority voting against abolishing football.

The actual vote could not be learned as the count of ballots is being delayed pending receipt of ballots cast by absentee voters, which will not change the result. The majority was at least seventy-five votes.

MORGAN PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO CHARGE

John Morgan, colored, indicted by the October grand jury Monday on a charge of concealing stolen property, pleaded not guilty in Common Pleas Court Wednesday.

The date of his trial has not been fixed. Morgan was ordered remanded to the County Jail in default of bond. He has retained attorney F. L. Johnson to represent him.

The court appointed Attorney E. D. Smith as counsel for Bertha Harris, colored, indicted on a charge of cutting with intent to kill. She has not entered a plea to the indictment.

Walter Grooms, 18, indicted for manslaughter, and William Hicks, colored, indicted on a statutory charge, appeared in court Wednesday, but did not enter pleas. They were without means to obtain attorneys and the court expects to appoint counsel to defend them Friday.

Smith, as secretary of the committee.

RE-CODIFICATION OF CITY ORDINANCES NOW CONTEMPLATED

First re-codification of city ordinances in Xenia in the past eighteen years, designed to repeal or amend obsolete measures which conflict with either the state laws or present city laws, is expected to occupy the entire attention of City Commission at its meeting Friday night.

Thursday is the regular meeting night but because this is Thanksgiving Day, the meeting will be held Friday instead.

City Solicitor J. A. Finney, following instructions of commissioners, has been engaged in preparing data on the re-codification for the past three months and expects to complete his work by Friday.

The last re-codification of city ordinances was made February 1, 1909. Prior to that year it had been customary to re-codify the ordinances every ten years.

Xenia's charter form of government has been in operation ten years and many old city regulations, which are not now enforced or else conflict with laws passed in the last eighteen years, will be weeded out.

FIREMEN HELP COPS DISPERSE RIOTERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—As an aftermath of the two hour battle between more than a thousand rioting Columbia University freshmen and sophomores and police reserves in which ancient eggs, and decayed fruits and vegetables rained down on the law, sixteen students were under arrest today. Only the arrival of four fire companies dispersed the mob. Streams of high pressure water brought a quick end to hostilities.

The riot was a development of what had been scheduled as a "demonstration" to precede the Columbia-Syracuse Thanksgiving Day football game.

SHAGIN STRESSES SAFETY CAMPAIGN

Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, is making a personal tour of industrial plants, garages and filling stations, distributing "safety first" slogans and stressing the importance of taking greater precautions against accidents.

SETTLEMENT ENDS JURY TRIAL HERE

Jury trial of the suit of E. E. Wheelen against Walter Stoops, an appeal from a decision in a justice of the peace court, terminated in Common Pleas Court Wednesday when parties to the action effected a settlement and the jury was ordered discharged by the court.

Part of the evidence had been heard when the jury was excused from further consideration of the case.

NATIONAL GRANGE TO DISBAND FRIDAY

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—Continuance of the committee reports to be followed by a regular business meeting, were on today's program of the national grange, which closes its sixty-first annual convention here Friday night. The all important report of the committee on legislation will not be forthcoming before Thanksgiving Day, according to national master L. J. Taber, when that group, headed by Jesse Newsom, of Indiana, is scheduled to favor or oppose many resolutions pertaining to issues, ranging from the McNary-Haugen farm-relief bill to the debenture plan advanced by the Ohio grange.

James A. Emery, counsel for the national association of manufacturers, Washington, addressed the grange yesterday afternoon and stressed the importance of continued co-operation between the farmer and the manufacturer.

CONSCIENCE WORKS --MONEY RETURNED

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—A man who committed a theft twenty-five years ago has been stricken by a guilty conscience and as a result Morris Garfinkel, father of Charles Garfinkel, deputy immigration inspector here, is fifty cents richer.

A quarter century ago, the elder Garfinkel conducted a small general store at Forest, Pa. One day, without Garfinkel's knowledge, a quantity of candy and several bottles of pop disappeared from the store.

Just recently, the former storekeeper received a money order for fifty cents and a letter in which the writer expressed the hope that "now that I want to get right with God, this fifty cents will atone for my juvenile pilferings."

"I don't care so much about the money," Garfinkel said, "but it is a pleasure to know that there are honest people in the world, even though it takes years for some of them to show it."

FLOOD THREATENS

MONTREAL, Q., Nov. 23.—For a month the province of Quebec was threatened with inundation today as rain, falling for forty-eight consecutive hours, added to the remaining waters and damages of last week freshets. The torrents continue without any sign of relief and, given another twenty-four hours, anything may happen.

RENO VISITOR

RENO, Nev., Nov. 23.—Declaring that his trip here was without any particular significance, other than to visit friends, Lieut. Benjamin F. Manning, who recently married the former Mrs. Horace E. Dodge, Jr., at Honolulu, was in Reno today.

OFFICER IS SHOT

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 23.—Police Sergeant Ed Dusing was in Mercy hospital today recovering from a bullet wound. He was shot in the left leg during a gun battle with two bandits in Ottawa park Tuesday night.

MARSHAL IS BIG

BRIDGEPORT, O., Nov. 23.—William Gretzinger, newly-elected village marshal, is more than six feet tall and weighs 360 pounds. When he ordered a uniform, he had to pay $22 above the standard price because of extra material required, friends state.

STUDENTS UNITED IN COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE TUESDAY

all young people, once maturity is reached—and it is reached much earlier than most parents prefer to admit—are of more value both to themselves and to society and are better able to do their work in the world if they are married.

"Youth is the very time of times for the full enjoyment of the free comradeship that marriage means. This right, for no good reason except a groundless regard for old, worn-out conventions, is denied the youth of today."

"Josephine is only a junior in high school and her fiancé is in his sophomore year at the University of Kansas. It will be at least five or six years before he will be ready to carry the full financial burden, and at least that long before Josephine can assume the full responsibilities of a home and family—as both certainly intend eventually to do."

Sites Own Marriage.
"It seems perfectly unreasonable to them and to us that they should have to wait these five or six years. It is, perhaps partly because Mr. Haldeman-Julius and I have been so happy in our own marriage that I feel that Josephine and Aubrey are acting wisely."

"I hope this step of theirs—of marrying while in school and continuing right along with their school work—may prove to be an encouragement to other young couples to do the same, and even more of one to the parents who may be tempted to be sensible and what they fear may be criticised."

"For, let me add this most emphatically, a companionate marriage such as this can only be entered into by young people with the full consent, sympathy and co-operation of parents. That so few young people can obtain this is to my mind a serious indictment of fathers and mothers of today."

BARTLETT AND EARL SAYRE PLEAD NOT GUILTY; TRIAL SET

Troy Bartlett and Earl Sayre, both of Clarkburg, W. Va., indicted by the October grand jury Monday on charges of robbery and carrying concealed weapons, respectively, pleaded not guilty to the indictments in Common Pleas Court Wednesday morning.

Bartlett's trial is fixed for November 30 and the trial of Sayre will be held December 1, the court announced. Bonds of both prisoners were fixed at $1,000. They were remanded to the County Jail in default of bail. Bartlett has retained Attorney Marcus Shoup as his counsel. Attorney F. L. Johnson represents Sayre. Bartlett is charged with robbery in connection with the hold-up of The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. branch store, Main and West Sts.

WILBERFORCE GLEE CLUB ON PROGRAM

The Wilberforce Glee Club, the talented university organization composed of sixty members and comprising a variety of voices, will appear at Shiloh Baptist Church in Columbus Wednesday evening.

The program is sponsored by the Columbus branch of the Wilberforce Alumni Association. The club enjoyed a real success last year, appearing in many of the large cities. One recital at Dayton was attended by 3,000 people.

Among the soloists in the group are James Lucas, tenor; Earl Beuchamp, baritone; Dallas Saunders, bass, and Raglan Reid, tenor.

TO GIVE SERMON

Rev. Allan D. Dunkleberger, of Dayton, Ohio, will give an illustrated message Sunday at 7:30 p. m. at Xenia United Brethren Church. He will use the subject "From The Cross To Paradise." He will use a number of interesting and attractive slides of the life of Christ and scenes in Palestine, to illustrate his message. The public is invited to be present. Doors open at the chapel at 7 p. m.

WORKERS WILL START FRIDAY ON CHRISTMAS SEAL DRIVE

Tuberculosis caused twenty deaths in Greene County in 1926 as compared with twenty-five in 1925, according to state health department statistics made public here by Dr. R. R. McClellan, of the Greene County Health League, which is sponsoring this year's Christmas Seal Sale.

Total deaths from this disease in Ohio showed an increase over 1925 from 4,816 to 5,083, or a rate increase from seventy-six per 100,000 population to seventy-nine per 100,000 population. Conservative estimates point out that there were nine active cases for each death from tuberculosis during the year which would indicate there are about 180 active cases in Greene County now.

The county, in the meantime, is caring for four patients at the Clark County Tuberculosis Sanitarium, according to R. O. Wead, county auditor, and the approximate cost of this public health service is $4,000. Seal sale workers point out that helping to prevent the disease through money raised by Christmas seals is a good investment for the future, as elimination would cut down the amount that would have to be spent for care of these patients.

Hard-headed Xenia bankers and business men are also endorsing the Seal Bond being sold this year.

The bond, printed to look like any investment bond, enables the donor who wishes to contribute $10 to the cause to do so, without being required to buy 1,000 stamps.

Workers will start solicitation Friday, as the annual Red Cross roll call ends Thursday. These campaigns, both for worthy charities, have no connection as they operate as separate agencies and should not be confused in making subscriptions to either or both.

The seal sale solicitation will occupy four days, after which the stamps will be on sale at downtown locations.

Money Love

READ THIS FIRST: LILY LEXINGTON is the spoiled only daughter of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS. Her mother's fondest dreams are realized when she becomes engaged to a rich bachelor named Staley Drummond and the wedding date is set for June. The day after he proposes Lily goes down town to meet her friend, SUE CAIN, and on the way sees a man watching her through the crowd. She is instantly attracted by him and then she sees that he is a taxi driver. She jumps into his cab, forgetting Sue, and is driven home. She learns that his name is PAT FRANCE, that he owns the cab in a company headed by his friend, ROY JETTERSON. He is going to sell it, so he says, to raise money toward marketing a piston ring that he has invented.

As the days go by Lily realizes that she is too much in love with him to marry Staley Drummond, who has learned of her friendship with Pat and is suspicious of it. But Mrs. Lexington announces the engagement and the plans for the wedding go forward.

Just about the time Lily has resigned herself to life with Staley, Pat comes to work at the house as Mrs. Lexington's chauffeur! He has taken the job, he admits to Lily, just because he wouldn't resist temptation to be near her for even a few weeks before her marriage. From that moment they are together constantly, and CARRIE, one of the housemaids who is in love with Pat, herself, goes to Mrs. Lexington with the story of their attachment and then leaves, ordered out of the house by Lily. Pat tells Lily the best thing he can do is leave, too, and let her marry Staley, because she never would make a poor man's wife. He takes her to his own home, introduces her to his father and mother, who both work in their little grocery next door, and to his sister, FLORANCE, a snappy young flapper who is overwhelmed by Lily's clothes and diamonds and furs. The next morning Mrs. Lexington tells Pat he is to wait on table that night, and when he refuses to do it, discharges him. Lily hears the argument, dresses herself in the best clothes she has, and goes out to his room above the garage, to see him.

(Now Go On With The Story) CHAPTER XX Pat was standing beside the table in the middle of the room, packing his suitcase. He glanced up, startled, as Lily threw open the door and stepped inside, shutting it behind her. She stood there for a moment, looking at him from under her thick lashes—as unbelievably beautiful as a magazine-cover portrait of a modern girl. Perfect from the crown of spun copper hair on her head to the toes of her pale-pink kid "sports" shoes with their high French heels.

Later on Pat was to learn that all that breath-taking loveliness cost money—that the bright hair had to have treatments and shampoos every week, that the ivory skin owed much of its mat whiteness to a certain pearl powder, and that the half-open coral lips were that particular shade because of a small French lipstick that costs $2 a stick and does not last very long. Lily was very beautiful, naturally, but money is an aid to looks always, nevertheless. But he did not know all of these things on that May morning, and Lily seemed to him like the very personification of the springtime glory outside the windows of his room—part of the apple-blossoms on a tree across the road, part of the sunshine, part of the green and gold and the blue of May.

"Pat, you're not going!" she whispered so that Agnes, who was hanging up dish towels in the yard outside would not hear her. "You're not going without me, Pat! I won't let you!—I can't!" She came close to him and put her arms around his neck. She gave him a kiss that was all warmth and perfume and soft silken lure. "If you don't take me now, Pat, I'll never have the courage to leave after you're gone. I'll think you don't want me. Truly, I will!" Pat held her away from him, his hard, brown fingers closed on her wrists, his eyes on hers. "You know what it means if you go with me?" he asked. "It means hard work and cheap dresses and a tiny place to live in, doing all your own work. Washing and ironing and scrubbing and cooking."

For a second Lily hesitated. Not because she wasn't sure that she loved him. She knew she loved him. But she was thinking of old Annie Herbenek, the laundress, who did the Lexingtons' washing every week. She thought of her hands, wrinkled from water and soap suds, and her sopping calico apron, with the pockets full of clothes pins. She shuddered and looked at her smooth pink-tipped fingers. Could they become shriveled and wrinkled like old Annie's?

"Well, I reckon I could do even my own washing, Pat," she whispered, as she smiled up at him. "I wouldn't mind washing your shirts, would I?" She laid her head against the snowy pocket of the one he had on. She could feel his heart beating under it, and she held him closer to her. He seemed the most precious and wonderful person in the whole world.

"Pat, I can't live if you don't take me," she said solemnly, and meant it as she never had meant anything before. "If you don't take me with you."

Compared with the way she wanted him, she never really had wanted anything before. All the things she had had seemed less than nothing to her in that moment when she was begging Pat France to marry her. She barely thought of them, and she barely thought of Staley Drummond and the suite he had engaged on a French liner for June the fifteenth.

Nothing was real to her but Pat, his hands red-brown with sunburn, holding her wrists, and his heart beating steadily under the pocket of his shirt.

"I feel like a thief," he said, low in her ear, "taking you away from all this and giving you nothing but a lot of hard work and no fun at all. We won't even have an automobile unless I can borrow one from Roy every now and then."

Lily crinkled her nose up at him and laughed. Her eyes were starry with happiness. "Oh, you foolish kid!" she said to him. "Don't you know that your piston ring is going to make us rich? I'll have everything that Staley Drummond's wife could have in a few years, and I'll have my own boy on the tip of his chin, and I'll be married to her feet in a wild embrace that left them both shaken and breathless."

"I'll go and pack up a few things, too!" she told him after a minute or two. "And we'll go right away, won't we?"

Still quivering and tingling with excitement, she ran into the house and up the back stairs to her own room. Her mother was waiting for her. She was sitting in the window seat and in her hands she held the padded hanger that had held Lily's orchid-and-pink dress a few minutes before. Her eyes were narrowed until they were gleaming slits in her face, and one foot tapped the floor in nervous anger.

"I didn't come in here to spy on you, Lily," she said. "But Sarah MacCabe finished your wedding dress this morning, to the very last stitch of pearl embroidery, and I brought it in here to hang it up. Then I found this!"—she waved the hanger like a flag—"lying on the closet floor. And here you are in one of your trousseau dresses! Now, what did you put it on for? Just to go to say good-bye to that chauffeur out in the garage?"

"I didn't say good-bye to him," answered Lily, wide-eyed as an innocent child. "I'm not going to say good-bye to him. I'm going to say good-bye to you, Mother, and to this house. I'm leaving with Pat."

If she had struck her mother a hard blow between the eyes she could not have amazed or hurt her more. Mrs. Lexington's proud, cold face lost its look of pride and coldness in an instant. It seemed to crumple up like a withered flower, and her chin shook like a child's chin when it whimpers. The change was so swift that it was like magic. Her hands flew to her face, pressing it hard as if she were trying to hold it in shape—to keep from breaking down and sobbing. Tears of shock sprang to her eyes. "Lily! You don't mean it! Tell me you don't mean this!" she begged. "You mean you want to marry that—that chauffeur?"

Lily nodded, and dragged her pale-gray bags from the closet. As she bent down to do it, the looped up court-train of her wedding dress brushed her face.

She took it from its hanger and looked at it—not as if it belonged to her, but as if it were some other girl's bridal gown of white satin and soft lace and seed-pearl embroidery.

"Nice, isn't it?" she said to her mother, as if she were speaking to a casual acquaintance.

A half hour before, when she had stood in the little writing room downstairs and begged her mother to tell her what to do about Pat France, she would have been ready to take advice and orders. . . . She had felt young and helpless and in need of her mother then.

But now she had made her own decision—she had decided to leave the house and marry Pat France. Her decision to set a whole town talking by jilting one of its wealthiest bachelors almost at the altar, and running away with a penniless chauffeur.

She began to put her tortoise-shell-and-gold toilet articles into the smaller bag. As she did it, she heard the crisp rustle of her mother's skirts as she left the room. She sat back on her heels and watched her go in amazement.

"Well, I certainly didn't expect her to take the news so calmly," she said to herself. "I expected her to kick up an awful rumpus."

But Mrs. Lexington was far from calm, and very, very far from taking the news calmly, as Lily might have known if she had stopped to think. But she was far too happy to do any straight-line thinking herself. She was caught up into a cloud of sunny happiness, from which she saw such details as sat-in wedding gowns and jilted lovers as through a golden mist. Even her mother's misery did not mean very much to her just then. "Besides," she thought limly "she wouldn't be happy if I married Staley and I was wretched forever after."

No, it was better for her mother to rant and cry and threaten a little bit now than it was for her to be sorry later that she had stopped her from marrying the man of her choice, even if he was a poor man. . . . Much better.

"And money can't mean so much to me after all," Lily went on thinking, as she packed three tube-like dresses and three sets of silk underthings into the big pale-gray suit case. "For I don't feel very blue about leaving everything behind and going to live on bread and cheese and kisses."

But she never had tried bread and cheese and kisses. She knew nothing about poverty, never having tasted that, either.

And she certainly did not know herself! Most people don't until they're down on their luck. She never had been.

Lugging the two bags, she went down the back stairs into the yard. As she reached the back porch the sound of angry voices came to her—her mother's and Pat's. They were having a heated argument. They were standing in the driveway under the glare of the sun. A few feet away from them Agnes was watching them and listening to them, eyes, ears and mouth wide open.

"—It's the only fair thing to do!" Lily caught the tail end of something her mother was saying. "And I insist that you do it. She doesn't know her own mind. You're simply sweeping her off her feet and you know it!" She brought her palms together smartly.

Pat's lips tightened. "All right, have it your own way, Mrs. Lexington," he said, with a politeness that did not hide his anger. "But if I'd wanted to sweep her from her feet, I could have done it eight weeks ago. And I didn't. There were times when I wouldn't let her get into my cab. When I lied to her—told her I was busy and drove away. But I'll do what you ask me to, although I think it's a silly thing to ask."

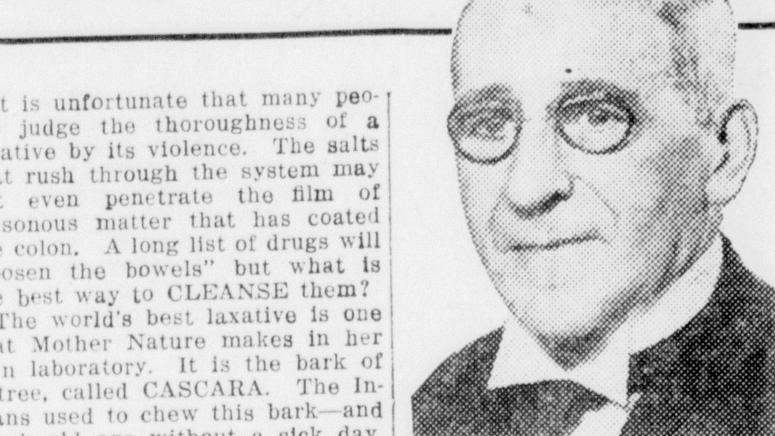

Lily came up to him. He had taken off his working clothes and looked very handsome in a dark blue suit and a gray felt hat. He put his arm around her.

"Your mother doesn't want us to get married for twenty-four hours," he said, looking down at her lovely flushed face pillowed on his shoulder. Quite shamelessly she raised it to him for a kiss before she spoke.

"Why not?" she asked. (To Be Continued.)

A Doctor Talks About Cascara

It is unfortunate that many people judge the thoroughness of a laxative by its violence. The salts that rush through the system may not even penetrate the film of poisonous matter that has coated the colon. A long list of drugs will "loosen the bowels" but what is the best way to CLEANSE them? The world's best laxative is one that Mother Nature makes in her own laboratory. It is the bark of a tree, called CASCARA. The Indians used to chew this bark—and reach old age without a sick day. It is the best thing there is today, for any system; best for the blood. The most beneficial in its action on the bowels, of anything yet disclosed. For many reasons:

First of all, there is no HABIT formed from cascara. The bowels are not weakened, but strengthened by its occasional use. The occasions when one needs this aid grow less and less. Its influence is long-felt. You don't find yourself woe-bound-up the day following. You do find the bowels more inclined to move of their own volition. The candy cascara that every drugstore always has in stock is the ideal form of cascara. —Adv.

HALITOSIS? KILL IT!

Seven times in ten, Halitosis is due to a sour, gassy stomach, caused by intestinal stasis, or "Constipation." People with halitosis (unpleasant breath) are shunned, avoided, because they are like a "plague"—friends just can't endure being near such a person. Old and young, rich and poor, none escape if fermented food remains in the body more than 24 hours. Even if the bowels move daily, there is often a remainder of foul, decaying matter, that can only be removed with a thorough cleaning, such as Blackburn's Cascara-Royal Pills produce. This sweet little pill is "Better than Castor Oil!" Its action is pleasant and prompt. Stomach, liver, spleen and intestines are benefited. The effect is so different from ordinary laxatives, salts, calomel, etc. A smooth, abundant action from the very first dose, soon rids you of all the disagreeable symptoms. Let the whole family learn the value of Blackburn's Cascara-Royal Pills, 45 pills, 30 cts. at drug stores.

Sees Counsel

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 23.—Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray must die in the electric chair during the week of January 9 next for the slaying of Albert Snyder, the woman's husband, the court of appeals announced today.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—"An appeal for executive clemency is practically the only remaining hope." This was the statement today of Samuel L. Miller, counsel for Judd Gray, jointly under sentence of death with Mrs. Ruth Snyder for murder of the latter's husband.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—"Well, that's another job for me," that was the comment today of Robert Elliott, Sing Sing prison executioner. He had been informed that the appeals of both Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray had been denied.

Although Elliott has maintained that executions do not worry him greatly, he said today he did not "look forward easily" toward executing Mrs. Snyder. Discussing his general attitude toward his work for the prison, he declared that he did not look upon himself as an individual, but "merely as a tool of the state and justice."

Meanwhile Dr. Kearney, prison physician, after examining Mrs. Snyder, today pronounced her physically and mentally sound. He said she had recovered entirely from the shock she suffered upon receiving the news that her appeal had been denied. Gray, who appeared unmoved at the time, did not seem to be under any nervous strain, he said.

Edgar F. Hazelton, of defense counsel, spent about an hour visiting Mrs. Snyder last night. She sent him a telegram as soon as she was informed of the higher court's action, and was noticeably impatient until he arrived.

"I'm not lost yet. What time is my counsel coming?" She is quoted as saying between the time she sent the telegram and the time Hazelton arrived. The time Hazelton arrived, the time of his conference with his client.

Principal Keeper John Sheehy today recounted in greater detail how he broke the news to the pair. He described the dialogue as follows: "I have some bad news for you, and you might as well hear it now," Sheehy told Gray.

"I had rather expected it, thank you," Gray replied. Then Sheehy went to Mrs. Snyder and said almost the same thing to her.

"What does that mean?" Mrs. Snyder asked.

"It means," the principal keeper replied, "that six weeks from today, unless the governor does something for you, you will have to go in back," and he nodded toward the door leading to the death chamber. Sheehy stated that it was a prison custom never to refer to "the chair" or to execution directly, and that the term "in back" generally was used to indicate the death chamber. He also declared that "bad news" was sufficient to inform an inmate of the death house that an appeal or a commutation had been denied.

ALLEGED JURY TAMPERERS WILL ANSWER TO CHARGES DECEMBER 5

Grand Jury's Possible Indictments Still Pending—Clark Hearing May Be Postponed Until Jury Acts.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The government today was gathering in the loose ends of its movement to send Harry F. Sinclair, New York oil magnate, and five others, including the internationally famous detective, William J. Burns, to jail for alleged tampering with the Teapot Dome oil conspiracy jury. Sinclair, Burns, H. Mason Day, Sheldon Clark, W. Sherman Burns and Charles L. Veitch must appear in the district supreme court on December 5 to show cause why they should not be judged in criminal contempt as a result of the employment of fifteen Burns operatives to maintain "an improper surveillance" over the Fall-Sinclair jurors.

Still hanging fire over them, and others, is the prospect that a federal grand jury will return indictments charging conspiracy to obstruct justice.

The only move scheduled by the district attorney's office today was the procurement of a postponement of a preliminary hearing for Sheldon Clark, set for November 25, before a U. S. commissioner. Clark and Mason Day, together with Sinclair, were formally charged by Assistant U. S. Attorney Neil Burklinshaw with conspiracy to influence a petit jury—Clark and Day being alleged "contact men" between Sinclair and the Burns agency—and Clark availed himself of the right to have a preliminary hearing to show cause why he should be so charged.

Burklinshaw planned to ask Commissioner Turnage for a continuance on the ground the grand jury had not completed its investigation into the activities of the Burns men. Morgan Beach, Clark's attorney, is expected to agree in view of Justice F. L. Siddons' action in citing his client for contempt.

Siddons, it is believed, today will discharge from further service his special committee of two, appointed to ascertain whether there was reason for the court to make contempt citations as a result of the mistrial in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy case.

PACIFISTS OPPOSE NATIONAL ANTHEM

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 23.—Abolishing patriotic songs of a martial nature, including "The Star Spangled Banner," in the public schools was the program before the New Jersey Federation of Women's Clubs today as a means of eliminating war.

"At Christmas time," said one speaker, "children sing songs asking Santa Claus to bring them swords and guns. This also ought to be stopped."

PRESIDENT CALLES DONATED $100,000 TO BRITISH MINERS

Charge Executive With Helping Strikers Under Cover

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—President Calles contributed $100,000 of Mexican government funds to aid the British coal miners in their strike for higher wages, the Washington Herald asserted today in continuing its expose of Mexican activities in the affairs of other nations.

Diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Soviet Russia were broken after a raid on Soviet headquarters disclosed the part Moscow had played in financing the British strike, but the British government did not suspect that Mexico, too, was contributing to industrial unrest under its nose, the Herald declares.

The Herald reproduces the text of a presidential order to the Mexican finance minister, which it says was secured from the secret files of the Mexican foreign office, as follows:

Presidential order, June 24, 1925: You will please order the citizen financial agent of Mexico in New York to transfer by cable and through the minister of Mexico in London the sum of $100,000 to be delivered to the fund of the coal miners union as a secret aid contributed by the government of Mexico to the maintenance of the ideals of the proletariat.

"Take care that these orders be issued in special code and with the necessary safeguards of transmission," (signed) P. Elias Calles.

Don H. Gruening, a former American newspaper man and close friend of Calles, also was sent to London to report directly to Mexico City on the progress of the strike, the Herald asserts.

NO RACE SUICIDE

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—As an effective answer to charges of "race suicide" in the community, Walter Player, chairman of the census committee today produced Mrs. Pasquale Vanezio, who, at the age of 45, has given birth to twenty-two children. Her husband is a cobbler.

TABER BLAMED FOR FARM RELIEF FAILURE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 23.—Responsibility for the failure of farmers to agree upon a federal farm relief plan was attributed today by Charles T. Traux, state director of agriculture, to the "influence" of L. J. Taber, Barnesville, recently re-elected master of the National Grange. Taber is a Republican and Traux, a Democrat.

"Sooner, or later, farmers will insist on placing the responsibility for the state of affairs and the leaders of the Grange will do well to consider their position," said Traux.

Traux said the action of the Grange in endorsing the debtors plan for farm relief was due to "Taber's influence," according to Traux, farmers and co-operative marketing organizations were

Unusual Marital Contract Stirs Up Comment

By J. C. JOHNSON
GIRARD, Kan., Nov. 23.—An 18-year-old girl, junior in the Girard high school and a 19-year-old youth, sophomore in the University of Kansas, were the principals in this state's first companionate marriage.

The bride is Miss Josephine Haldeman-Julius, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Haldeman-Julius, owners of the Haldeman-Julius Publishing Co., of this city.

The groom is Aubrey Clay Roselle, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Roselle.

A DEFINITION
NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of the Free Temple of New York, defines companionate marriages as follows:

"It throws away the lock of wedlock, and ends the wed. It does not mean marriage with birth control, but birth control without marriage. It is outwardly reform and inwardly abolition. It cannot be marriage as long as its essence is childless. It means change your partner—marriage means change yourself."

Roselle, the elder Roselle operates the Girard Creamery here. They were married Tuesday.

The parents of the girl are exponents of companionate marriages.

Not a Trial Marriage.
Mrs. Haldeman-Julius, commenting on the marriage of her daughter, says:

"One hesitates to use the term companionate marriage only because it is so often and willfully misunderstood and apt to be confused in the public mind with trial marriages, which is the exact opposite."

"But," she hastens to add, "for the sake of all other young people who are ready to marry, but whose parents are reluctant to take what I feel is a fair attitude, neither Josephine and Aubrey, nor Mr. Haldeman-Julius and myself wish to avoid a term which we feel strongly expresses a sane and wholesome attitude."

"For any marriage, in which neither is in their tender years. I fully believe," she says, "that the husband and wife assume the financial responsibilities, in strict speaking, a companionate marriage."

Mrs. Haldeman-Julius is firm in her belief that young people should be permitted to marry even if they

PROPOSE CABINET TO KING ALBERT

BRUSSELS, Nov. 23.—A tentative coalition cabinet, composed of Liberals, Catholics and Christian Democrats, was submitted to King Albert today by Premier-Designate Jaspars. It ratified it will succeed the Socialist government that resigned Monday.

The new ministerial slate omits Socialists and, if the government, as planned, is installed in power, it will meet with strong opposition from the Socialists in parliament. The Socialists leaders have already called a caucus to plan an aggressive opposition to any new cabinet that does not contain Socialist representation.

MONEY TALKS

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Opinions of companionate marriage might be had for the asking—but not from Bernard Shaw.

The famous wit, upon being asked his opinion of the Josephine Haldeman-Julius and Aubrey Clay Roselle matrimonial arrangements, at first refused, saying:

"I'm afraid I'd rather not talk about it. It's no joke, you know. It is not a matter you can dismiss with three words."

However, as an afterthought, Shaw dismissed it with five figures. He said:

"I'll tell you—I'll give you my opinion for $75,000."

BELIEVE BOMB BLAST LAUNCHES GANG WAR

Tension Tightened As Vice-Ring Building Is Wrecked—Believe Explosion Was Warning From Capone Gang.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—The tension in Chicago's threatened gang war was more strained today following a bomb explosion which last night wrecked a notorious rendezvous belonging to the Bertsche-Skidmore vice syndicate.

Special detectives assigned to the task of preventing a renewal of the deadly machine gun feuds, believe the place was blown up as a warning to the Bertsche faction not to poach on gambling and vice territory south of Madison St.

It is said that the last "peace" "Capone wants the Bertsche faction to know they must not cross the Madison Street line," said one investigator.

Fifteen girls, said to have been inmates in the wrecked building, fled in panic. None was seriously injured.

Lieutenant John Ryan, touring the near west side soon after the blast, arrested three men "on suspicion." They were Italians, known to be friends of Scarface Al Capone.

PARTY LEADERS DRAW LINES FOR FIGHT ON CORPORATION TAX CUT

Republicans Want Reduction To Apply On 1927 Incomes—Democrats Say Corporations have Already Passed Tax On

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—A new political fight over tax reduction broke out today when Republican spokesmen announced their determination to make the forthcoming corporation income tax cut apply to 1927 incomes.

Accepting the challenge, Democratic leaders immediately declared that they would battle this plan until the bill finally goes to President Coolidge.

While Republicans asserted that it is a mere matter of justice to adopt this proposal, the Democrats declared that it actually means handing back $178,000,000 to corporations which they have already passed on to the ultimate consumer in increased prices.

With the total tax reduction tentatively fixed at $235,820,000 the house ways and means committee today planned to put the finishing touches on the bill and send it to congress on Dec. 5, the first day of the coming session.

"Tax reduction ought to be made effective in the present calendar year," said Rep. Chindblom, (R) of Illinois, member of the committee. "Reductions have always been made on this basis, and the action we are taking applies to the present year."

"I believe business will be stimulated by tax reduction, which is an added reason for applying it as soon as possible. Whether the tax is passed on or not depends upon competitive conditions."

Rep. Collier, (D) of Mississippi, also a committee member, declared that it would be "an outrage" to make the tax cut effective on 1927 incomes.

"The corporations have passed this tax on to the consumer, and we would not be giving the money back to those who paid the tax," he said. "The tax cut should be effective January 1, 1928. This view is taken by Rep. Garner, (D), of Texas, ranking minority member of the committee, while Rep. Watson, (R), of Pennsylvania, an administration supporter on the committee, declared for the 1927 cut plan."

Republican leaders hope to pass the bill by March 15, the date of the first payments on this year's income tax. The Democratic plan would delay the cut until after the 1928 presidential election.

The reductions proposed by the committee are: corporation income tax, 1-1/2 to 11-1/2 per cent, $166,000,000; exemption of corporations with income of $3,000 or less, $12,000,000; automobile purchase tax, cut from 3 to 1-1/2 per cent, $33,000,000; capital stock transfer tax cut in half, $5,337,000; repeal of tax on sale of produce on exchange, $2,885,000; repeal of tax on cereal beverages, $198,000; reduction of wine tax to pre-war level, $410,000; exemption of these items from the $1.00 or less, $5,000,000; club dues tax, cut from 10 to 5 per cent, $5,000,000.

Against this the committee proposed to raise the tax on prize fight tickets costing $5.00 or more from 10 to 25 per cent, to yield $500,000 in taxes, Chairman Green said the committee voted for this because they believe big fights like the Dempsey-Tunney go "are a detriment to the country" and because "they are a good subject for a tax."

AIRMAN RETURNS TO CALIFORNIA AFTER PLANE TURNS OVER

Spin Causes Briton To Lose Flight Instruments

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 23.—Captain Frederick A. Giles, British airman, who started on a flight to Hawaii from San Francisco, yesterday, today was at San Simeon, Cal.

Approximately eight hours after he took off in his Hess Bluebird biplane, Giles brought his machine to earth 275 miles north of here.

Giles estimated he was about 500 miles at sea when his machine went into a spin. His plane, he said, turned upside down and his supplies and navigating instruments fell into the sea.

The British aviator said he gained control of his machine only after a desperate effort. With his supplies and instruments gone, there was nothing left for him to do but to strike out for the mainland.

Guessing his directions, Giles headed his machine eastward and made a perfect landing on the Hearst ranch.

Undismayed by the mishap, Giles said he would again try the flight to Hawaii, the first lap of a proposed air journey to New Zealand.

"I am going to repair the ship and fly her back to San Francisco," he said. "And then as soon as the moon is full, and I can get new charts, I'll be off again."

Giles declared he never expected to reach land after his machine went into a spin.

My center section bracing wires had snapped and I dumped my main gas tanks to lighten the strain," he said. "I figured my chances of getting back to land were just about zero. I struck the coast about sixty miles north of where I landed."

Giles is of the opinion that his experienced solves the fate of the planes lost in the Dele-flight.

"It was only by the sheerest luck that I pulled through with my biplane," he asserted. "Had I been flying a monoplane, much less stable than my type of plane, I am afraid that I wouldn't have been able to pull myself out of it."

Giles said the weather was ideal until he reached a point about 300 miles at sea. Then, he said, he ran into weather which he described as being "utterly foul."

"The air pockets I encountered were terrific," he said. "I battled against them continually. Finally my instruments dropped out of them and then my real fight began."

TRADES BOOZE FOR ESSENTIALS OF LIFE

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Nov. 23.—One source from which some striking union miners have been securing their supplies during eight months of idleness had been revealed today following conviction of William Grant on a bootlegging charge.

Grant admitted in court that he had been trading moonshine whiskey to ship union miners, who are working the mines, in exchange for hams, bread and flour. He was fined $500 and costs and sentenced to the county jail.

HUNTER WOUNDED

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—George Wallace, 28, Cleveland, was reported in a critical condition at Mt. Sinai hospital here today, following a hunting accident near Burton, Ohio. Burton authorities said Wallace was shot in the abdomen when a companion's gun was accidentally fired. William M. Alexander, of Cleveland, the companion, who said he thought his gun was unloaded, was exonerated of all blame.

MEXICO SIESTA WAR OVER U. S. HABIT OF "EIGHT HOUR" DAY

BROWNVILLE, Tex., Nov. 23.—Merchants in all Mexico were plunged into a "siesta" war when a movement was begun by Chambers of Commerce in the republic to follow the eight-hour business custom of the United States and Europe.

The movement is to be laid before the secretariat of industry and commerce, and old-fashioned merchants are protesting because it abolishes the traditional "siesta" after lunch, a custom which began in Mexico in the days of Hernan Cortez.

The innovators propose to follow the eight hour system common in American business houses having all employees arriving and departing at the same time, and giving them only one hour for lunch. The "oldtimers" are accustomed to having their employees arriving at various hours of the day, and to having all of them take a substantial "siesta."

The sleep-period has resulted in the closing of all business houses for two hours. Usually, if one wishes to purchase an article, he must do so before one o'clock and after three. No business transactions are recorded during these hours.

The Chambers of Commerce propose to establish the new law not only in Mexico City, but all over the republic, hence the protest.

NOTES ON—YOU KNOW WHAT
I am not unlike the street car motorman who took a long street car ride on his day off. Two of the most interesting days of my vacation last summer were spent at the Santa Barbara Cottage Hospital studying the methods of Dr. Sansum, the medical head of the institution.

The patients I was most interested in were the reducing patients. The hospital is a general hospital, but most of its patients probably are diabetics. Therefore the subject of reducing has been very thoroughly studied there. You know the reason—I have told you lots of times—over 75 per cent of the diabetics in middle age are overweight before the disease manifests itself. (Joslin says his diabetic patients average ten to the hundred.)

But they have a surprising number of patients going there simply for reducing. I shouldn't say "simply," for naturally those who are so much overweight that they require hospital or sanatorium care have developed other disorders as well. Dr. Sansum tells me that if they had rubbed stamp with the words "Obesity, High Blood Pressure, Constipation and Border-line diabetes," they would save much time in writing the case histories, for it would answer practically for all of the reducing patients!

As we were going the rounds, I met one patient—Mrs. McCauley will call her. She had just come in from a three-mile walk. As the doctor introduced us he told me that she had weighed 240 and could hardly walk when she first came in. She was then down to 150, and still had over a hundred pounds to go. I remarked to Mrs. McCauley that her name, with that weight, seemed to be familiar. Hadn't she written for my reducing instructions?

"If you are Dr. Lulu Hunt Peters," she responded, "I did doctor, and I got a good start. But as I was so very much overweight, I took your advice to put myself under the personal supervision of a physician. After my loss of thirty-five pounds, I now feel that I can carry on by myself. Fortunately, I didn't have to learn any new methods, for Dr. Sansum's are the same as yours."

This is true, for Dr. Sansum's method, or that of any scientific physician, differs in no essential from what I have been teaching you.

The calories of food given are very carefully counted and limited, in most cases, to a thousand calories a day. In the thousand calories allowed, the dietitians very carefully include 50 to 55 C. of protein, and sufficient vegetables and fruits to supply the carbohydrates, vitamins, minerals and bulk. Three glasses of skim milk are given daily to help supply the complete protein. All free fat is cut out with the exception of one-half level tablespoonful of butter a day (the body fat supplies the balance of the fat needed).

The only exercise Dr. Sansum advises at first is a daily walk. Perhaps the patient can walk but a block or two in the beginning, but he is asked to get out every day, and gradually increase the distance.

Only those whose metabolism (the vital process of digestion of food and the building of tissues) is lower than normal receive any medication. (You will be surprised to know that most overweight persons have a normal rate of metabolism.)

Dr. Sansum emphasizes to his reducing patients that they need a surprisingly small amount of food to live on because the insulating powers of their layers of fat prevent the loss of body heat and limit the activities. Because of this retention of body heat and the limitation of the activities, the food is not completely oxidized or burned for power and heat and deposited as fat.

Tomorrow: Unusual Thanksgiving Dinner.

NOTE: Please send in stamped, addressed envelope with requests for answers.

YOUTH CONVICTED ON MURDER CHARGE

MONTREAL, O., Nov. 23.—In the dramatic setting of the historic court of King's Bench, Gerard Filiatreault, 21 year old epileptic, convicted of the murder of Fabien Martin, suburban grocer, today was sentenced to hang on March 2.

Defense counsel had advanced the plea that, though Filiatreault committed the crime, he was insane, despite the evidence of alienists to the contrary. On the verge of collapse, the boy, who manifested disinterest in the days of the trial by calmly sleeping in the dock, endeavored to read a statement declaring that if he committed the crime at all it was while he was mad and during a mental blank, as he had no recollection of the deed. The jurors quickly adjudged him sane by bringing in the guilty verdict.

California Fig Syrup is utterly harmless, of course. The one need of caution is to get the real California product. Say "California" and get the genuine; the generous bottle is only sixty cents at all dealers. So it isn't expensive!

Try California Fig Syrup two weeks on any child, and let his altered appearance and actions tell the full story! —Adv.

An Old Boy
Interviews A Farmer!

The Old Boy:—

"Are you completely outfitted with all the Bows and Arrows you feel you will need for the hunting season? We'd sure like to take your order for a few dozen."

Farmer: "I've been studying on buying a half gross or so of arrows but since I've been looking at these LOW PRICES that Rawlins, the new Bow and Arrow maker has been making I kinda thought I'd try him out on a few. Are YOURS any BETTER?"
The Old Boy—"Not ONE BIT better. Rawlins makes a Bow and Arrow that is just as good as WE ever made."

The Farmer:—"Well then if Rawlins makes just as GOOD a Bow and Arrow as you Old Boys make why SHOULDN'T I trade with him—when he makes them cheaper?"

The Old Boy:—"I don't agree with you that Rawlins can make them any cheaper. He may SELL them a bit cheaper for a short time in order to make a hit with you farmers who hunt and to get you in the HABIT of trading with him. But that's ALL."

Farmer: "Why didn't you Old Boys do that a long time ago if it works with Rawlins so well. Is it going to cost us extra money in order to buy of you Old Boys?"
Old Boy: "It needed some chap like Rawlins to WAKE US UP to our opportunities in making goods cheaper. TODAY we can sell just as cheap as RAWLINS because we are all UNDER ONE TENT and doing business as if we were ONE FIRM. And in OUR case we are making a FAIR PROFIT."

Farmer: "Well if I can get just as GOOD bows and arrows as Rawlins sells and can buy them just as cheap certainly I'll buy of you OLD BOYS because it's a FACT that you were here FIRST and you LIVE HERE and spend your MONEY here. So wrap me up a couple hundred arrows."
Old Boy: "I thank you."

H. AND A. EMPLOYEES HOLD ANNUAL CELEBRATION

With its usual elaborate detail, the annual Thanksgiving party was held by the office employees of the Hoover and Allison Co., at the Knights of Pythias Castle, Tuesday evening. Eighty people, members of the main and lower offices and their families enjoyed the affair.

The committee in charge of the party and which was responsible for its success, with the co-operation of other members, was composed of Mr. Lawrence Landaker, Mr. Fred Coy, Miss Edith Neeld, Miss Ruth Alexander and Miss Laura John.

A banquet was served in the early evening at prettily appointed tables in the banquet hall. Combined place cards and programs were found at each cover. The letters of the menu items were jumbled, furnished much amusement before the repast was served.

Miss Fay Ledbetter presided as toastmaster and short talks were given by various representatives of the firm. Songs, including a number of parodies, were sung during the banquet.

The program of the evening immediately followed the banquet and opened with a vocal solo by Miss Leona Keller. A "Hallelujah Chorus" was ably presented by Mr. Harry Williams and the Misses Helen Smith, Marjorie Wade, Evelyn Eyster, Laura John and Mrs. Anna Williams.

A play, "Pat's Matrimonial Venture," was cleverly presented by Mr. Roy Spahr, in the title role, Miss Lucille Meahl and Miss Mary Wilson.

A specialty skit was given by Mrs. Harry Williams and Miss Marjorie Wade which was well received. Miss Ruth Alexander gave a pretty vocal solo. A musical number "Side by Side," was given by Mr. Williams and the same chorus, closing the program with an excellent finish. Miss Mary Heaton was the accompanist, and played for the grand march which opened the dancing party that was enjoyed the remainder of the evening.

Have You Acid Scalp?

If your hair won't keep the simplest wave for several days, there is probably too much acidity. A condition that causes hair to be stubbornly straight and stringy, and to lack all lustre. Acid scalp.

From the hour you check this excessive acidity your hair will act and appear very different. It will arrange easily in any style that becomes, for it will have lovely softness, and all the sheen all healthy hair normally has. Danderine will neutralize the acid, and actually dissolve every particle of dandruff scale. Your hair won't need anything else to keep it fresh, wholesome, and free from the most objectionable taint that is too often noticed in otherwise fastidious women.

Danderine sells for only thirty-five cents at any drug store, and as only a few drops on comb or towel will do the work, a bottle lasts for weeks!

Editor of Gazette:

I notice in the police reports of your paper, numerous arrests of motorists fined or bonds forfeited. Does the mayor and arresting officer receive fees from the above? If so I think that the state made an overwhelming veto of such a practice.

Xenia received enough unwelcome notoriety from the Marshall bill. Now it will become notorious, — Ike Horton

R. R. 3 Greene Co.

The correspondent above is in error. Xenia's municipal court is not a fee court. They mayor and members of the police department receive fixed salaries not in any way dependent upon the number of arrests or the amount of fines. For this reason Xenia's municipal court and police do not come under the criticism that has been directed at fee courts and fee officers.—The Editor.

"FLAPPER GRANDMOTHER" WAS DOG-GONED GOOD SAYS CRITIC

If finer amateur performances of "The Flapper Grandmother," presented under auspices of the Central High Parent-Teachers' Association, than the one which took place Tuesday night at Jean B. Edwell Auditorium are given then we are ready to undertake any journey in order to see them.

When the producers bill it as a "musical play in three acts" they speak incorrectly. It should have been labeled a "rollicking farce comedy in three spasm." Rollicking is the word. It is exceptionally funny, because the fun-making springs from clever situations and because the cast is uniformly excellent.

In the first place the title alone is intriguing and the play is just as intriguing as the title. The comedy is replete with action and hilariously funny situations.

The central figure in the play is Maggie Pepper, the "flapper grandmother," a role that is capably filled by that excellent actress, Miss Helen Hurley. But the prima donna is outshone by one of the minor characters.

The transformation of the grandmother into the well-equipped flapper type girl of today was exceedingly clever in its work out. But the surprise of the evening was the transmigration of Belinda Spriggins, a part enacted by Miss Alice Foley in the most approved style.

What a whale of a difference a few cents make. Old-fashioned Maggie invests in Teapot Dome oil stock. It bubbles over and she finds herself wealthy. Accompanied by her young granddaughter, she takes a trip to Europe and both return transformed into very flapperish individuals.

The emphasis in the early part of the evening in contrast to the modern sister was a scream. The characterization of Belinda was not overdone, and the poor younger sister seemed hopeless until she joined the pilgrimage of the grandmother and became created into a modern girl of the "flaming youth" type.

The extremes of emotional contrast made the characterization a revelation of histrionic abilities unforeseen in the budding actress who took the part of Belinda. Indeed the play could easily have been renamed, "The Transformation of Belinda."

Miss Hurley was capably supported by William Horner as Dr. Thomas as Joy.

The show was off to a good start with a clever act by Miss Helen Ford and Robert Owens, portraying the characters of Lena Spriggins and Jimmy Swift, respectively. Assisted by a fine chorus of girls, this team gave songs.

An uncommonly good act was put on by Miss Foley and John Sutton, the latter as Bobby Smith. Their lines were funny and their characterizations were even funnier.

The high spot was reached when Belinda went to Paris with grandmother and they broadened their outlook on life. In the second act Belinda turned out to be every inch a Parisian.

Mrs. Fred Snyder and Harry Higgins, as Mat Spriggins, and Andrew Spriggins, the middle-aged couple, played their parts adroitly and provided an endless round of amusement.

Isadore Hyman, as Count "Seek-em Rich," who trailed Grandma Pepper back from Europe, with matrimonial intentions, was in his element, and his brother, Arthur, as Dick Tate, a policeman, gave a fine portrayal.

Other bits of the show included Harry Kiernan as Rastus Jones and George Swartz, as Lily White, the sweetheart of the colored porter.

These two were always popular and this occasion was no exception.

Miss Esther Ford interpreted a dance of the Elf with the Dummies in finished style. Margaret Snyder as Eve, the forgotten child, was fine.

The choruses were especially good, particularly the Rag Dolls, eight tiny tots, which included Barbara Lane, Barbara Ann Yockey, Beatrice Robb, Mary Ann Baldwin, Mary Leebetter, Janet Chamberlain, Ruth Waddle and Katharine Wade.

Debutante flappers were Marguerite Zeiner, Helen Currie, Ruby Johnston, Rachel Douthett, Esther Ford, Dorothy Devos, Helen Street and Helen Spahr. The "Oh, Oh, Lena" chorus was composed of Helen Hill, Jean Marshall, Florence DeMint, Dora Hayward, Frances Hamlin, Helen Benbow, Elizabeth Irwin, and Margery Jones. "Door knobs" included Betty Savage, Betty Jane Stark, Georgia Barnes, Dorothy Denham, Marjorie Snyder, Evelyn Jones, Helen Lewis and Marjann Powell. The "Jelly Beans" were Roger Chubbiss, Lloyd Knick, Paul Collins, Russell DeMint and Archer Maxwell. Matrons included: Goldie Grabitt, Polly Perkup, Fanny Findum, Hetty Hookitt, Susie Socken, Millie Markdown, Jenny Jerket and Betty Byson, if these names mean anything to you.

The play was directed by Miss Anna Lee Deyer, representative of The Wayne P. Sewell Producing Co., Atlanta, Ga., the producing company. Music and novelties were by Hattie Jane Dunaway. Miss Emma LaMar, at the piano, interpreted the music perfectly. The high school orchestra furnished music between acts.

The play was given Tuesday night before an audience that filled the auditorium to capacity. It will be repeated Wednesday night. Now if those who have not seen it will do their part, all will be well, as the comedy is well worth seeing.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray.

Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because many one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

FOR COLDS

BAYER

ASPIRIN

To break a cold harmlessly and in a hurry try a Bayer Aspirin tablet. And for headache. The action of Aspirin is very efficient, too, in cases of neuralgia, neuritis, even rheumatism and lumbago! And there's no after effect; doctors give Aspirin to children—often infants. Whenever there's pain, think of Aspirin. The genuine Bayer Aspirin has Bayer on the box and on every tablet. All druggists, with proven directions.

GET RID OF YOUR FAT

Thousands of others have gotten rid of theirs by my simple and efficient method of fat reduction without starvation diet or burdensome exercise, often at a very rapid rate and WITHOUT PAYMENT until reduction has taken place.

I am a licensed practicing physician and have made a careful study of the physiological requirements of the human body. This has enabled me to select such ingredients and in such proportion as in my opinion will produce not only a loss of weight without harm and an improvement in health, but with it an alleviation of all of the troublesome symptoms which frequently accompany and often are a direct result of overweight, such as shortness of breath on slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, etc., not to speak of the relief from the embarrassment of being too stout. Stout persons suffering from such diseases as Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Eczema, Asthma and high blood pressure are greatly relieved by a reduction of their superfluous fat.

My treatment will relieve that depressed, tired, sleepy feeling, giving you the renewed energy and vigor which come as a result of the loss of superfluous fat. If you are overstout do not postpone but sit down right now and send for my FREE TRIAL TREATMENT and my plan whereby I am to be PAID ONLY AFTER REDUCTION HAS TAKEN PLACE if you so desire.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving Day has become as distinctive almost as the Fourth of July. It is rooted in American institutions reaching back to the fundamental principles upon which the nation was founded. Efforts have been made to find an origin for the observance among the ancients. It has been traced back to the Hebrew Feast of the Tabernacles, to the great harvest feast Thesmophoria, to the Roman Cerealia and to the English Harvest Home. It may be that there is something in common between the latter and the first Thanksgiving Day in America, which was observed at Plymouth immediately after the first harvest of the Pilgrims in 1621. But whatever its origin the day took root in American custom. The Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1630 formally adopted the plan of the Pilgrims. Connecticut followed suit in 1639. That the spirit behind the designation of a day of general thanksgiving was not racial, or rather that it became common to the pioneers of all races and nationalities who had cast in their lot with the nation builders of New England, is shown by the fact the Dutch in New Netherlands in 1644 observed the Thanksgiving Day of their English-speaking brethren. During the war of independence one or more Thanksgiving Days in each year, except in 1777, were appointed by the Continental Congress, and the executives of the various Colonial governments were asked to direct the observance of these days in their jurisdictions.

Then, a few months after the organization of the new American government under the Constitution, George Washington appointed Thursday, November 26, 1789, as "A day of public thanksgiving and prayer to be observed by acknowledging with grateful hearts the many and signal favors of Almighty God." The proclamation exhorted the people "to beseech Him to pardon our national and other transgressions, to promote the knowledge and practice of true religion and virtue and to grant unto all mankind such a degree of temporal prosperity as He alone knows to be best." This was the first national observance of Thanksgiving Day.

In 1795 Washington made a similar designation. At the close of the War of 1812, President Madison, in response to a resolution of Congress, set apart a day for thanksgiving. In 1817, New York, by proclamation of her governor began the observance of the day. It had not yet, however, become a fixed national holiday. Opposition to it was offered in some of the southern states as "a relic of Puritanic bigotry;" but by the late 50's the custom had made such headway that proclamations appointing a day of Thanksgiving were regularly issued by the governments of 25 states and two territories. Then, in 1864, President Lincoln appointed the fourth Thursday of November as a day of national Thanksgiving by official proclamation. Since that time each president has followed the example thus set, and Thanksgiving has become a fixed, annual event in the calendar of the United States and of its possessions.

The day is observed, of course, in various ways; some of them not always in keeping with the spirit which prompted the original designation. Its observance has spread far beyond the national boundaries, and in London, in Paris, in Berlin, and in the far-off Orient, on the appointed day, Americans gather in church and banquet hall in observance of the day. If it be true that the religious significance of the day is sometimes lost sight of in the more popular turn given to the method of its observance, it remains a fact that there is still a high value in such a day of national stock taking, when, amidst the feasting and merry making and the post prandial acclaim of our national greatness, serious thought may be, and is, given to the steadily advancing happiness and prosperity which has been the lot of the people of America through the long stretch of years between the first Thanksgiving of bleak New England, and the year of peace and plenty and promise in which Thanksgiving of the year 1927 will be observed.

FAITH

A real estate man known to the writer has done two million dollars' worth of business in a comparatively short time. Much of that time conditions have not been good for the real estate business. At least that is what other real estate men said. This man says that enthusiasm, belief in the thing you are doing, faith in your own business and in the thing you have to sell is the answer. He has done more than other men because he has believed more than other men. He has had more faith than other men.

LIVING FOREVER

If our whole conception of life is encircled by the few years that we are to live upon the earth, we have a small appreciation of life. If we are not building for a future beyond our own days we are not building much. Men crave immortality. Men cannot live forever on this earth but they can greatly extend the value of their lives, here and now, by building beyond their own little day. They can achieve immortality by their works. And how are men best and longest remembered? Not by their accumulation of wealth. They are longest and best remembered—they achieve their immortality—by their service to others. He who helps most lives the longest.

WOULD YOU BE RICH?

So many want to be rich. Are you sure you want to be rich? Don't you get your greatest happiness from doing the every-day things that bring you a living? Aren't the very things—at least some of them—that you have to do because you are not rich, the things that bring you your greatest content, your greatest peace of mind? Think of your life without the necessity of life without the necessity of earning a living, without the necessity of work. Would it be a full, complete, happy life?

The Daybook OF A New Yorker

By
Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—A recent issue of one of the weeklies had a cigarette advertisement, which was the first public admission, to my knowledge, that women smoke. The ad was embellished by a sketch of two girls arguing over the relative merits of various smokes, and although the average reader the picture looked innocent enough, it really marked a revolutionary change in the attitude of tobacco firms. It is commonplace enough, the idea of women smoking, in the big cities of the country. But of course there are vast stretches, in the middle west in particular, where a cigarette in a feminine hand is still the badge of iniquity. So the advertising department of that cigarette manufacturing company braved a storm of angry letters from Kansas and Iowa when it took the profits of that copy.

On Broadway, among the Two Hundred and Fifty Unhappy Streets, is a hopeful sign reading "Subway Entrance." The subway at this point has been in course of construction longer than I like to remember, and I imagine the meaningless sign is a source of constant irritation to people in the neighborhood.

You can walk a mile for a mailbox in Manhattan—and even then you may not be lucky enough to find one. In nearly every other place where I've lived, the mailbox has been a commonplace, a ready convenience. But in New York the postal higher-ups are evidently stingy about installing collection boxes. Time and time again I have trailed aimlessly around City Hall Park, seeking a spot for an important letter. And for always end up tired and very much exasperated, by posting it in the box inside the Pulitzer Park Row at a decidedly congested point. A similar lack of building, this means crossing post boxes is observed in the small Westchester towns, in Brooklyn and the Bronx.

Once on a time it was fine, lolly thing to be a dramatic critic in New York city. Occasionally such a dignity could draw down a pair of seats for a friend, visiting town, or for his boss, the managing editor. Now so great is the popularity of the theater, the critic shows off his influence by assisting his acquaintances to buy seats. Thus, friends of mine recently succeeded in buying, through the proud help of a reviewer, matinee tickets for "Rio Rita." And for a month in advance.

Double feature at the neighborhood movie house often achieve humorous title combinations. In the Bronx yesterday I saw this one:
THE CRUISE OF THE HELICON.
SWIM, GIRL, SWIM!

I like the city in the rain. You can only crawl across town in a taxi, but if you are wearing a rubber coat and are not burdened with an umbrella, you may enjoy the gleaming of reflections on the onyx pavements, the giddy blur of green and red lights in high up bronze traffic towers. Most people carrying umbrellas, I find, are exceedingly inconsiderate. Head down, weapon poised, they are more likely than not to charge down the wrong side of the walk, and dead is the traffic jam of pedestrians carrying these webbed straps of destruction.

KELLYGRAMS by Fred C. Kelly

Still on the Deep Blue Sea
These English are staid folk who believe in going to bed fairly early even on shipboard. The bar closes at 11 o'clock and by midnight the waiters are turning out lights to discourage everybody from remaining longer in the main lounge room. By that time the decks are deserted and even sailors have mostly disappeared. I suppose somebody must stay up all night, to keep this brave craft to its course, but to all appearances, after midnight, this is nothing but a floating rest cure.

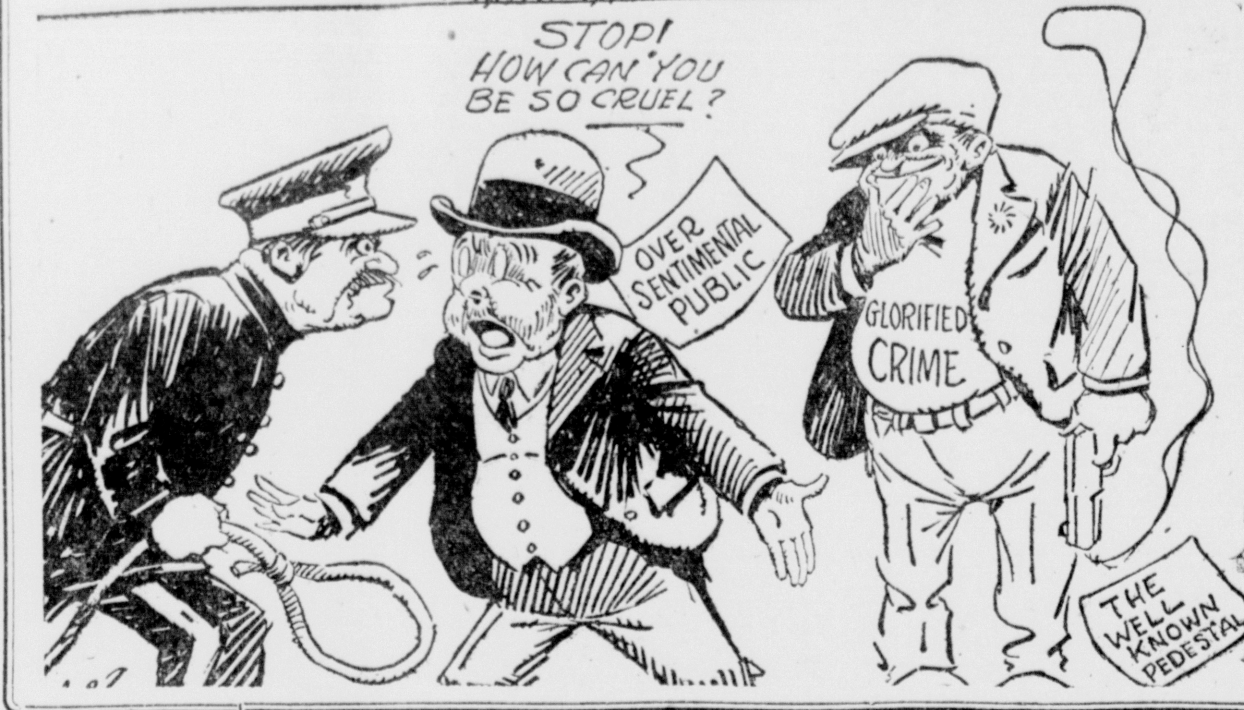

All my life I have been trying to find somebody willing to sit up with me and talk until I feel inclined to go to bed. When others are asleep and the noise and hubbub of the day have subsided, then, it seems to me, is the logical time for congenial spirits to get together and talk over the state of the universe and see if something can't be done.

What is more depressing than having to go to bed for lack of anything to do, when you feel like sitting up?

I have seen little drunkenness aboard this ship and that entirely confined to my fellow countrymen. The great trouble with the average American's drinking is that he doesn't seem to know how to enjoy a jag after he gets it. He becomes either sodden and stupid or else his hilarity takes the form of pointless screaming. Two of the most consistent drinkers aboard are a thin little man from Ohio and his fat wife. She is so over-sized and walks with such a duck-like waddle that one may hardly blame her husband for wishing to escape from

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

An Impossible Friendship

Mr. Rattler wound himself up into rings until he looked like a heap of automobile tires, one piled upon the other. Then he reared his long, flat head and looked admiringly down upon himself.

"S-s-s! I certainly do like to dress as a Serpent of my position should. Nothing fancy—how I should hate to have to wear a frill like Lizard, or drag behind me a sweeping tail as vain Peacock does, or carry a house on my back, however beautiful the shell may be, as does poor old Turtle! Eat and trim and as clean as a pin, that's I! No feathers for me. I should feel too hot, and no tail that sticks up straight or hangs behind. I am satisfied with a suit as smooth as silk, not a wrinkle in it, and with spots of color that would make the brightest butterfly dull with envy! Say, Boy, don't you think I'm graceful?"

Rattler wriggled all over—from the tip of his tail to the top of his sleek head. How did he do it? Peter shivered as he watched, but he had to tell the truth. "You are graceful, and beautiful, too, and maybe if you will tell me more about yourself I shall learn to like you. But, you see, I have heard about so many things about you, I have done like I can't quite feel you are my friend, even though you say so! I darsay if it were not for the Lizard's tail I should have run away long ago."

"To be sure you would have! If you hadn't gone while the going was good, you would never have gone at all!" the Serpent said that curious rattle that made Peter want to take to his legs. He stood his ground, though, and changed the subject.

"What did you do with your old suit of clothes, Rattler. And why are you blind when you shed your skin?"

"Two very sensible questions, my friend."

Boy, and you shall know the answer to each in good time. Shall I curl up at your feet while I tell you? But be sure to keep fast hold of the Lizard's tail, for without it nobody knows what might happen between us! A Rattler happens between us! A Rattler and a Two-Legs friend? Never! Not really! Fear may make a Serpent captive, fearlessness a Two-Legs master. But—and remember what I say, youngster—nothing that either of us can do can make the other like him. Come to think of it, Rattler hasn't a friend in the world. A good thing, too. He is better off without friends!"

A New Angle on "Petting"

A group of girls writes asking for advice, they say. But from their letter I should think they have settled the question for themselves:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: A few of us girls want your advice on the following question: We

some of the more obvious realities of life. But somehow I question the wisdom of a fat woman, going in seriously for strong drink. Just in case fat is surely enough for one woman to have to answer for.

This man confided to me that his wife was a mere slip of a girl when he married her. An experience like that must be downright discouraging. If a man deliberately marries a fat woman, he presumably knows what he is about and has nobody but himself to blame. But if she acquires the figure of a baby hippo after marriage, the husband can only assume that the Fates have a grudge against him.

A woman passenger named Louise Swing, an accomplished linguist, offered to help a young man who was trying to learn French from a little handbook. He came to such phrases as: How is your father? How is your mother? How is your uncle?

think that if we do not go with boys that pet our evening is spoiled. The boys that do not pet are very dry and lacking in interesting conversation.

"Do you think that is wrong? We do not, because the other fellows that do not pet are uninteresting. We do not think this ruins a girl's character. Do you?"

"We have been with boys of both kinds. The petting kind are lots more interesting. Please advise."

If you've decided that boy that do not pet are uninteresting. Girls, what do you want me to say? Possibly your ideas of what constitutes conversation need revising. What do you think? What do you like to talk about? One attractive girl to whom I put the question said that it was her experience that boys who have nothing to talk about "pet." Petting would not necessarily ruin a girl's character. Would it improve her, do you think?

dearly and am to be married next month. When I was young I made a big mistake which wasn't my fault. My fiancée does not know and I am afraid to tell him. I know he would not believe me or forgive me. If anything should part us I could not bear it. Dear Mrs. Lee, please advise me.

I cannot see the justice or the sense of letting a mistake—even of so serious a character—ruin your life, Miss X. It is past, you are sorry and will probably be a finer and more understanding woman because of it. Make up your mind to put it behind you and forget it as far as possible.

FEATURES

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—The congressional committee meetings we refer to, as in progress in Washington now, are not real congressional committee meetings.

They simply are meetings of congressmen-elect—strictly speaking, of no more consequence than anybody else. There are vacancies on these committees, too—gaps where members sit who lost out last election. They are not real congressional meetings. But that doesn't matter much. A new committee member generally doesn't get the slightest attention paid to him for a long, long time.

Any way, this is true of the representatives' committees—so called, by courtesy.

The senate's a "continuing body." Its members' terms expire only a third at a time. At least two-thirds of a senate's always available. Its regular committees hold over—of course, with vacancies, and subject to reconstruction when party majorities change.

The representatives go out, slick and clean, every two years. Theoretically, there's a new deal every congress—speaker, committees and all.

These present meetings are of representatives who were re-elected, who were on certain committees when they were here before and who take it for granted they'll be on the same committees again.

Doubtless they're right, with the same old majority and the same minority as last time.

Still, the witnesses they summon, and put under oath, and grill, and bother, and bullrag, could rattle on their hind legs and tell 'em to go hunt a warmer climate, with impunity, if they chose.

Congressman Bill Green's ways and means (also known as the taxation) appropriation and Representative Frank Reid's all star cast of flood control experts have done the heavy committee work up to date, but others are getting together as December draws near.

Appropriation, a agriculture, naval affairs—these are just a few of the subjects that invariably require a lot of preliminary talking over.

Those five programs—revenue—raising, its expenditure, flood prevention, with all its ramifications, farm relief and cruiser-building—will be in pretty good shape, as the committee have them doped out, when congress meets—and then, of course, the roll will start.

Senator Jim Reed's special slush fund committee—the one that's been so busy with the question of Senators-elect Bill Vane's and Frank L. Smith's right to seats in the upper house—promises to furnish the senate with its curtain raiser next month.

At first it looked as if Vane and Smith certainly wouldn't get in.

Then several Democrats got an idea it wouldn't be states' rights to exclude them and it began to look as if they would.

But a few days ago a funny thing happened.

Senator Smoot went over to Philadelphia to make a speech—on taxation—perhaps rather dull.

Anyway, his audience hooted him off the platform, and Vane, who was right there with him, never lifted a finger to make his roughneck behavior. Now, Smoot's a mighty powerful senator, and they say he's mad as a hornet, clear through. Will it make a difference with Vane's reception when he raps on the senate door? Some folks think it may. As for Smith, well, why should the senate make a fool out of him if it makes a fish out of Vane?

SILENCE!

On the western plains the sheepman goes out with several thousand head and one human companion. The natural result is that the pair, forced on one another when they least want it, form the habit of hating each other.

An ex-sheepman while in a narrative mood one evening was telling a party of friends of a fellow he once rode with. "Now, I had had passed between us for more than a week, and that night, when we hopped up in our blankets, he suddenly asked:

"Hear that cow beller?"

"Sounds to me like a bull," I replied.

"No answer, but the following morning I noticed him packing up.

"Going to leave?" I questioned.

"Yes," he replied.

"What for?"

"Too much argument."

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDAH MCGLOONE GIBSON

I picked up an old Atlantic Monthly today and read this paragraph:

"Minor friction is the kind that produces the most showy results with the smallest outlay." You can stir up more electricity in a cat by stroking her fur the wrong way than you can by dropping her down a well.

You can ruffle the dearest member of your family more by asking him twice if he has locked the back door and emptied the under the refrigerator than his political opponents could possibly stir him with a gross libel on his personal veracity.

Someone has said that modern martyrdom is a series of small annoyances.

One of the things which makes for more martyrdom than almost any other annoyance is the idea which most people have in regard to time.

I have always wanted to write a screed on the time that I had lost because I was prompt. I think I have wasted more hours in waiting for other people to keep their engagements than in any other one thing.

There is always the woman who does not know anything about time except when she has heard somewhere that time was made for slaves, consequently, whenever she thinks of looking at the clock she immediately decides to show the world she is free born.

The woman who is always late for a dinner engagement may be the most entertaining woman in the world, but her hostess hates her with a deadly hatred.

Like every other conventional dereliction, the lax way in which some people regard their engagements makes them more disliked than though they consistently were found breaking the engagements. I heard a woman say that she could stand bad morals much better than she could bad manners, and she classed the unpunctual people as the most boorish of anyone she knew.

A noted Frenchman has said: "The science of stopping in time is much neglected." This should be told to the clubwomen who are given ten minutes and takes twenty; the woman who keeps you at the telephone when your jelly is burning on the stove; the woman who begins to say "goodbye" to her hostess at 5 o'clock and is still at it at 6, although the hour of tea is long past and the hour of dinner immediately looming.

One of the great tragedies of marriage is that two people do not find out until after the fatal knot is tied that the family always moves with an irregularity of rhythm that not only lends suspense but sometimes tragedy to the atmosphere.

When a woman who is always tardy is unequally yoked with a man who is prompt the family always moves with an irregularity of rhythm that not only lends suspense but sometimes tragedy to the atmosphere.

Memo: "Tempus" never does anything else but "fugit" and it does that with celerity and dispatch.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The Flattering Effect of Costume Jewelry

First let me say in this talk on the flattering effect of costume jewelry that I am not going into the matter of precious stones or the family jewels that are handed down from generation to generation. I am taking up jewelry for its decorative value alone, not its intrinsic worth.

Personally, I believe there is nothing that lights up the face as much as pearls do. This probably accounts for their continued popularity over a period of so many years. Just as a touch of white will set off a painting, pearls seem to bring out the beauty in practically every feature. They make your teeth look whiter, your complexion more transparent, your whole appearance softer.

Crystal brings out the light in your eyes and gives a glint to your hair. It is especially noted for these virtues, although all sparkling stones have a tendency to do likewise in varying degrees. If you have blue eyes, you must be careful in the choice of blue jewelry. For instance, a dark blue stone will make your eyes seem lighter while one of the same tone with a little more intensity will make your eyes seem darker. Brunettes can wear heavy gold jewelry, but for blondes silver and platinum are more becoming. Rings can add greatly to the beauty of a slender hand, but I do not advise a woman with fat, pudgy palms and short fingers to go in for them. Whatever rings the latter type of woman does wear should be in an elongated setting, never a round one.

As for bracelets, they are so much a matter of individual style, that I believe the only way for a woman to choose her bracelets is to study herself very carefully and pick out the ones which she feels look right with her particular bracelet. Do not wear more than are necessary to enhance your costume. I recently saw a picture of a girl with 36 bracelets and I must say she looked nothing short of barbaric. Remember that many bracelets always make the arms look heavier. A style that is extremely amusing and flattering to an exotic type of woman is the bracelet on the upper arm. For the fortunate few who can resort to this style, it lends much more character than the bracelet on the wrist.

In this sophisticated day, powder and rouge compact have come so much into prominence that it is a natural step from jewelry to vanity cases. The subject of my next talk will be "Let Your Vanity Express You."

GREENE COUNTY NOT KEEPING PACE WITH TUBERCULAR FIGHT

"Greene County has not kept pace with the rest of the state in the fight against tuberculosis," Dr. J. A. Frank, chief of the bureau of hygiene, State Department of Health, told the Greene County Health League at its December session, Tuesday afternoon at the Court House.

"Other counties have begun to profit by the results of a campaign such as you are just now launching," he continued.

"A search for, and proper care of, pre-tuberculous children has resulted in preventing altogether the worst loss that tuberculosis causes, namely cases of tuberculosis meningitis, which is the only form of tuberculosis that is absolutely incurable.

"All the forms of tuberculosis in children steadily decrease wherever anti-tuberculosis work is done."

Dr. Frank complimented Dr. R. H. Grube, county health commissioner and the county board of health for providing a health nurse for Greene County next year. Xenia City, of course, will not have a public health nurse until the public demands one.

Dr. M. I. Marsh, Cedarville, Mrs. W. H. Finley, Xenia, and Mrs. L. W. Yellow Springs, head the committee on clinics in the seal sale drive. Mrs. Frank Thomas, New Jasper heads the committee on scales and charts; Dr. T. F. Myler, publicity and Mrs. Rosa Shaffer, nominations.

Yellow Springs, Cedarville, New Jasper, Xenia Twp., and four Xenia organizations were represented at the meeting in addition to the Health League.

RELEASE OF DOTY ORDERED AT ONCE

PARIS, Nov. 23.—Minister of War Plaine today telegraphed an order to the commanding officer of the French Foreign Legion at Sidi-Bel-Abbes, Algeria, to release Bennett J. Doty, an American, from further duty at once.

Doty, whose home is in Memphis, Tenn., enlisted in the Foreign Legion in 1925 under the name of Gilbert Clare. He deserted in May 1926, while his regiment was stationed in Southern Syria after serving eleven months. He was sentenced to death. Later the sentence was commuted to eight years in prison. The French government pardoned Doty in September of this year after he had spent thirteen months in prison.

Doty was ordered to return to the Foreign Legion service and rejoined his regiment in October. Doty's counsel made a plea to the government for cancellation of his enlistment term on the ground that Doty's mother was ill in America.

JUNKERS PLANE IS BACK; TRIAL FAILS

HORTA, The Azores, Nov. 23.—The Junkers hydro-aeroplane D-1230 was back in Horta today after making an unsuccessful start across the Atlantic to Newfoundland.

After weeks of waiting for favorable weather, the plane took off last night but was forced to descend after going but a short distance. The craft was immediately brought back to Horta.

When the start was made, the D-1230 carried two new pilots who arrived four days ago from Germany and who replaced Fritz Loose who had piloted the plane on its initial flights from Germany. The new men are Johann Risticz, famous Junkers flyer, and Alexander Von Bethelm.

Lilli Dillenz, Viennese actress, who hoped to be the first woman to cross the Atlantic by air, was aboard as a passenger. Fraulein Dillenz has been with the Junkers plane from the start.

TICKET AGENT MUST KNOW HIS ONIONS

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 23.—It is not altogether a matter of knowing the fare from Toledo to Climbing Hill, la., that qualifies Fred Dierks, of the New York Central ticket office here, for the ticket selling job which he has held for a score of years.

Dierks declares returning lost articles, more often pajamas than anything else; informing the public where the best hunting may be had, and acquainting himself with the altitude of railroad lines in the United States are among the duties that fall to him in running his office.

ANTIOCH STUDENTS VOTE FOR FOOTBALL

Continuance of football at Antioch College for at least three more years, has been approved by an overwhelming majority in a vote taken by the students of "A" and "B" divisions of the Yellow Springs school.

Proposal to place the gridiron sport on probation for this length of time was recently approved by a majority of 104 votes by "B" division students.

Division "A" students, who returned to school last Monday, also voted on the subject with a majority voting against abolishing football.

The actual vote could not be learned as the count of ballots is being delayed pending receipt of ballots cast by absentee voters, which will not change the result. The majority was at least seventy-five votes.

MORGAN PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO CHARGE

John Morgan, colored, indicted by the October grand jury Monday on a charge of concealing stolen goods, pleaded not guilty in Common Pleas Court Wednesday.

The date of his trial has not been fixed. Morgan was ordered remanded to the County Jail in default of bond. He has retained attorney F. L. Johnson to represent him.

The court appointed Attorney E. D. Smith as counsel for Bertha Harris, colored, indicted on a charge of cutting with intent to kill. She has not entered a plea to the indictment.

Walter Grooms, 18, indicted for manslaughter and William Hicks, colored, indicted on a statutory charge, appeared in court Wednesday, but did not enter pleas. They were without means to obtain attorneys and the court expects to appoint counsel to defend them Friday.

UNION SERVICES THURSDAY MORNING

Union Thanksgiving services will be held Thursday morning at the First U. P. Church. Special music will feature the program. An especially prepared responsive reading will be used at the service.

The Rev. W. H. Tilford, minister of the Presbyterian Church, will preach on "Thanks." The service will open at 10 a. m. and close promptly at 11 a. m. It is hoped that many will follow the President's proclamation and attend the services.

COMMITTEE FILES EXPENSE ACCOUNT

The Good Schools Citizens Committee received contributions amounting to $135 and expended about the same amount in behalf of the candidacies of J. B. Rife and H. E. Bales, re-elected members of the Greene County Board of Education, according to a campaign expense account filed with the election board by Horace Ankney, ex-chairman, and E. H. Smith, as secretary of the committee.

AUTOIST REPORTS ACCIDENT TO BOY

Report that his automobile knocked down but did not seriously hurt an unidentified boy on W. Second St. early Wednesday morning, was made at Police Headquarters by Lester Clemans, Jamestown, who is employed in Xenia.

Quick End to COLDS.

At the first sign of a cold—coughing, sneezing or discharge from the nose—go right to a drug store and get a box of HILL'S. Take a couple at once and cold breaks up. HILL'S knocks a cold in 24 hours because it does the four necessary things all at once—stops the cold, checks the fever, opens the bowels, tones the system.

HILL'S Stops Colds in One Day

Deal promptly with any cold. It may lead to grippe or flu. Take HILL'S, as millions do, and end the cold one day. Be sure it's HILL'S, in the red box. 30 cents.

RE-CODIFICATION OF CITY ORDINANCES NOW CONTEMPLATED

First re-codification of city ordinances in Xenia in the past eighteen years, designed to repeal or amend obsolete measures which conflict with either the state laws or present city laws, is expected to occupy the entire attention of City Commission at its meeting Friday night.

Thursday is the regular meeting night but because this is Thanksgiving Day, the meeting will be held Friday instead.

City Solicitor J. A. Finney, following instructions of commissioners, has been engaged in preparing data on the re-codification for the past three months and expects to complete his work by Friday.

The last re-codification of city ordinances was made February 1, 1909. Prior to that year it had been customary to re-codify the ordinances every ten years.

Xenia's charter form of government has been in operation ten years and many old city regulations, which are not now enforced or else conflict with laws passed in the last eighteen years, will be weeded out.

FIREMEN HELP COPS DISPERSE RIOTERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—As an aftermath of the two hour battle between more than a thousand rioting Columbia University freshmen and sophomores and police reserves in which ancient ruins, and decayed fruits and vegetables rained down on the law, sixteen students were under arrest today. Only the arrival of four fire companies dispersed the mob. Streams of high pressure water brought a quick end to hostilities.

The riot was a development of what had been scheduled as a "demonstration" to precede the Columbia-Syracuse Thanksgiving Day football game.

SHAGIN STRESSES SAFETY CAMPAIGN

Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, is making a personal tour of industrial plants, garages and filling stations, distributing "safety first" slogans and stressing the importance of taking greater precautions against accidents.

Large "stickers" bearing various safety slogans have been furnished through the courtesy of the Greene County Auto Club, affiliated with the Ohio State Automobile Association.

SETTLEMENT ENDS JURY TRIAL HERE

Jury trial of the suit of E. E. Wheelan against Walter Stoops, an appeal from a decision in a Justice of the peace court, terminated in Common Pleas Court Wednesday when parties to the action effected a settlement and the jury was ordered discharged by the court.

Part of the evidence had been heard when the jury was excused from further consideration of the case.

MAYOR'S COURT SPEEDERS FINED

Carl Sparrow, arrested by Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, on a charge of speeding Tuesday, was fined $5 by Mayor John W. Prugh.

Ginn McClain, also charged with speeding, forfeited $5 appearance bond. He was arrested by Shagin Monday, accused of driving thirty-six miles an hour in the residential district.

Grandmother Knew

There was nothing so good for congestion and colds as mustard. But the old-fashioned mustard plaster burned and blistered.

Musterole gives the relief and help that mustard plasters gave, without the plaster and without the blister.

It is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Gently rub it in. See how quickly the pain disappears.

Try Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frostbite, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

NICKEL LIMIT!

That's All Smokers Need to Pay for an Ace-high Good Cigar. Read the Glad News

Some men laugh when you say "a good five-cent" cigar and spring the old one about what this country needs. Some men think of the good old days. Others say "Show me." Maybe you're one of the skeptics. If you are, we want you to put yourself in the "show me" class. We say there is a good cigar selling at 5¢ right in this town today. And here's the way to prove it.

Just step into the nearest cigar store, plunk down one nickel and take a Havana Ribbon fresh from the box. No more hunting for a good cigar at five cents. No more disappointments. You'll sign up for life with Havana Ribbon then and there, and forget about the price.

Havana Ribbon is a good cigar because it's made of carefully chosen ripe tobacco. And it's made in one of the most modern cigar factories in the world. Don't let a nickel stand between you and a real smoke treat.

NATIONAL GRANGE TO DISBAND FRIDAY

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—Continuation of committee reports to be followed by a regular business meeting, were on today's program of the national grange, which closes its sixty-first annual convention here Friday night. The all important report of the committee on legislation will not be forthcoming before Thanksgiving Day, according to national master L. J. Taber, when that group, headed by Jesse Newsom, of Indiana, is scheduled to favor or oppose many resolutions pertaining to issues, ranging from the McNary-Hugen farm-roller bill to the debenture plan advanced by the Ohio grange.

James A. Emery, counsel for the national association of manufacturers, Washington, addressed the grange yesterday afternoon and stressed the importance of continuing co-operation between the farmer and the manufacturer.

CONSCIENCE WORKS --MONEY RETURNED

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—A man who committed a theft twenty-five years ago has been struck by a guilty conscience and as a result Morris Garfinkel, father of Charles Garfinkel, deputy immigration inspector here, is fifty cents richer.

A quarter century ago, the elder Garfinkel conducted a small general store at Forest, Pa. One day, without Garfinkel's knowledge, a quantity of candy and several bottles of pop disappeared from the store.

Just recently, the former storekeeper received a money order for fifty cents and a letter in which the writer expressed the hope that "now that I want to get right with God, this fifty cents will atone for my juvenile pilferings."

"I don't care so much about the money," Garfinkel said, "but it is a pleasure to know that there are honest people in the world, even though it takes years for some of them to show it."

FLOOD THREATENS

MONTREAL, Q., Nov. 23.—For a third time the province of Quebec was threatened with inundation today as rain, falling for forty-eight consecutive hours, added to the remaining waters and damages of last week's freshets. The torrents continue without any sign of relief and, given another twenty-four hours, anything may happen.

RENO VISITOR OFFICER IS SHOT

RENO, Nev., Nov. 23.—Declaring that his trip here was without any particular significance, other than to visit friends, Lieut. Benjamin F. Manning, who recently married the former Mrs. Horace E. Dodge, Jr., at Honolulu, was in Reno today.

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 23.—Police Sergeant Ed Dusing was in Mercy hospital today recovering from a bullet wound. He was shot in the left leg during a gun battle with two bandits in Ottawa park Tuesday night.

MARSHAL IS BIG BRIDGEPORT, O., Nov. 23.—William Gretzinger, newly-elected village marshal, is more than six feet tall and weighs 300 pounds. When he ordered a uniform, he had to pay $22 above the standard price because of extra material required, friends state.

All young people, once maturity is reached—and it is reached much earlier than most parents prefer to admit—are of more value both to themselves and to society and are better able to do their work in the world if they are married.

"Youth is the very time of times for the full enjoyment of the free comradeship that marriage means. This right, for no good reason except a groundless regard for old, worn-out conventions, is denied the youth of today.

"Josephine is only a junior in high school and her fiancé is in his sophomore year at the University of Kansas. It will be at least five or six years before he will be ready to carry the full financial burden, and at least that long before Josephine can assume the full responsibilities of a home and family—as both certainly intend eventually to do.

Sites Own Marriage.
"It seems perfectly unreasonable to them and to us that they should have to wait these five or six years.

"It is, perhaps partly because Mr. Haldeman-Julius and I have been so happy in our own marriage that I feel that Josephine and Aubrey are acting wisely.

"I hope this step of theirs—of marrying while in school and continuing right along with their school work—may prove to be an encouragement to other young couples to do the same, and even more of one to the parents who may be wavering as to what they know to be sensible and what they fear may be criticised.

"For, let me add this most emphatically, a companionate marriage such as this can only be entered into by young people with the full consent, sympathy and cooperation of parents. That so few young people can obtain this is to my mind a serious indictment of fathers and mothers of today."

BARTLETT AND EARL SAYRE PLEAD NOT GUILTY; TRIAL SET

Troy Bartlett and Earl Sayre, both of Clarksville, Va., indicted by the October grand jury Monday on charges of robbery and carrying concealed weapons, respectively, pleaded not guilty to the indictments in Common Pleas Court Wednesday morning.

Bartlett's trial is fixed for November 30 and the trial of Sayre will be held December 1, the court announced.

Both prisoners were fixed at $1,000. They were remanded to the County Jail in default of bail.

Bartlett has retained Attorney Marcus Shoup as his counsel. Attorney F. L. Johnson represents Sayre. Bartlett is charged with the robbery of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. branch store, Main and West Sts.

WORKERS WILL START FRIDAY ON CHRISTMAS SEAL DRIVE

Tuberculosis caused twenty deaths in Greene County in 1926 as compared with twenty-five in 1925, according to state health department statistics made public here by Dr. R. R. McClellan, of the Greene County Health League, which is sponsoring this year's Christmas Seal Sale.

Total deaths from this disease in Ohio showed an increase over 1925 from 4,516 to 5,083, or a rate increase from seventy-six per 100,000 population to seventy-nine per 100,000 population. Conservative estimates point out that there were nine active cases for each death from tuberculosis during the year which would indicate there are about 180 active cases in Greene County now.

The county, in the meantime, is caring for four patients at the Clark County Tuberculosis Sanatorium, according to R. O. Wood, county auditor, and the approximate cost of this public health service is $4,000. Seal sale workers point out that helping to prevent the disease through money raised by Christmas seals is a good investment for the future, as the amount that would have to be spent for care of these patients.

Hard-headed Xenia bankers and business men are also endorsing the Seal Bond being sold this year.

The bond, printed to look like any investment bond, enables the donor who wishes to contribute $10 to the cause to do so, without being required to buy 1,000 stamps.

Workers will start solicitation Friday, as the annual Red Cross roll call ends Thursday. These campaigns, both for worthy charities, have no connection as they operate as separate agencies and should not be confused in making subscriptions to either or both.

The seal sale solicitation will occupy four days, after which the stamps will be on sale at downtown locations.

SEAL DRIVE FACTS
Starts Friday with four-day house to house solicitation.
On sale afterwards at downtown booths located at the Hutchison and Gibney department store; Jobe Bros. department store; Postoffice; Sayre's drug store and Sohn's drug store.
Booth attendants will be costumed as Red Cross nurses.
Sale continues until Christmas.

Proceeds will be used in campaign to stamp out tuberculosis, which has already proved of great advantage.

YELLOW SPRINGS

Use of the Yellow Springs Library is increasing by leaps and bounds, according to the statistics recently announced by the County Library.

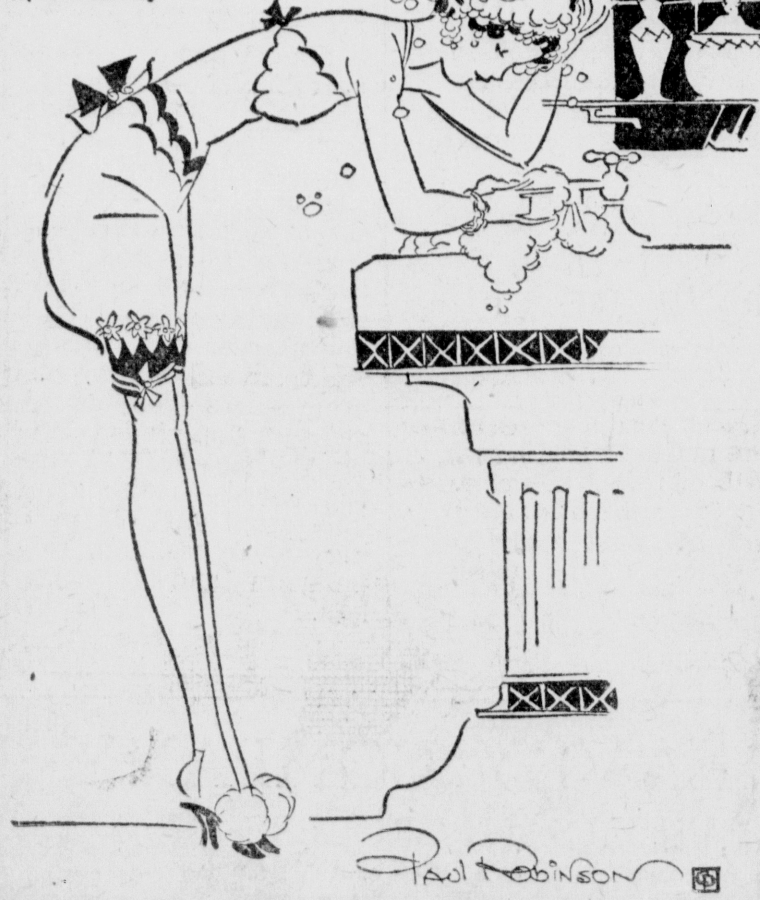

During September, 357 books were circulated; during October, 742 or a gain of more than fifty per cent in the use made of its resources. During the former month, twenty-five new members registered for library privileges, during the latter, sixty.

Many of these were children who responded to an invitation from Miss Mildred Sandoe, county librarian and Mrs. Carr, local librarian, to become borrowers. However, eighteen new adult readers registered also.

LILY LEXINGTON is the spoiled only daughter of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS. Her mother's fondest dreams are realized when she becomes engaged to a rich bachelor named Staley Drummond and the wedding date is set for June. The day after he proposes Lily goes down town to meet her friend, SUE CAIN, and on the way sees a man watching her through the crowd. She is instantly attracted by him and then she sees that he is a taxi driver. She jumps into his cab, forgetting Sue, and is driven home. She learns that his name is PAT FRANCE, that he owns the cab in a company headed by his friend, ROY JETTERSON. He is going to sell it, so he says, to raise money toward marketing a piston ring that he has invented.

As the days go by Lily realizes that she is too much in love with him to marry Staley Drummond, who has learned of her friendship with Pat and is suspicious of it. But Mrs. Lexington announces the engagement and the plans for the wedding go forward.

Just about the time Lily has resigned herself to life with Staley, Pat comes to work at the house as Mrs. Lexington's chauffeur. He has taken the job, he admits to Lily, just because he wouldn't resist the temptation to be near her for even a few weeks before her marriage. From that moment they are together constantly, and CARRIE, one of the housemaids who is in love with Pat, herself, goes to Mrs. Lexington with the story of their attachment and then leaves, ordered out of the house by Lily. Pat tells Lily the best thing he can do is leave, to go and let her marry Staley, because she never would make a poor man's wife. He takes Lily to his own home, introduces her to his father and mother, who both work in their little grocery next door, and to his sister, FLORENCE, a snappy young flapper who is overwhelmed by Lily's clothes and diamonds and furs. The next morning Mrs. Lexington tells Pat he is to wait on table that night, and when he refuses to do it, discharges him. Lily hears the argument, dresses herself in the best clothes she has, and goes out to his room above the garage, to see him.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XX

Pat was standing beside the table in the middle of the room, packing his suitcase. He glanced up, startled, as Lily threw open the door and stepped inside, shutting it behind her.

She stood there for a moment, looking at him from under her thick lashes—as unbelievably beautiful as a magazine-cover portrait of a modern girl. Perfect from the crown of her copper hair on her head to the toes of her pale-pink kid "sports" shoes with their high French heels.

Later on Pat was to learn that all that breath-taking loveliness cost money—that the bright hair had to have treatments and shampoos every week, that the ivory skin owed much of its mat whiteness to a certain pearl powder, and that the half-open coral lips were that particular shade because of a small French lipstick that costs $2 a stick and does not last very long.

Lily was very beautiful, naturally, but money is an aid to looks always, nevertheless. But he did not know all of these things on that May morning, and Lily seemed to him like the very personification of the springtime glory outside the windows of his room—part of the apple-blossoms on a tree across the road, part of the sunshine, part of the green and gold and the blue of May.

"Pat, you're not going!" she whispered so that Agnes, who was hanging up dish towels in the yard outside would not hear her. "You're not going without me, Pat! I won't let you—I can't!"

She came close to him and put her arms around his neck. She gave him a kiss that was all warmth and perfume and soft silken lure. "If you don't take me now, Pat, I'll never have the courage to leave after you're gone. I'll think you don't want me. Truly, I will!"

Pat held her away from him, his hard, brown fingers closed on her wrists, his eyes on hers. "You know what it means if you go with me?" he asked. "It means hard work and cheap dresses and a tiny place to live in, doing all your own work. Washing and ironing and scrubbing and cooking."

For a second Lily hesitated. Not because she wasn't sure that she loved him. She knew she loved him. But she was thinking of old Annie Herbenek, the laundress, who did the Lexingtons' washing every week. She thought of her hands, wrinkled from water and soap suds, and her sopping calico apron, with the pockets full of clothes pins. She shuddered and looked at her smooth pink-tipped fingers. Could they become shriveled and wrinkled like old Annie's?

"Well, I reckon I could do even my own washing, Pat," she whispered, as she smiled up at him. "I wouldn't mind washing your shirts, would I?" She laid her head against the snowy pocket of the one he had on. She could feel his heart beating under it, and she held him closer to her. He seemed the most precious and wonderful person in the whole world.

"Pat, I can't live if you don't take me," she said solemnly, and meant it as she never had meant anything before. "If you don't take me with you."

Compared with the way she wanted him, she never really had wanted anything before. All the things she had had seemed less than nothing to her in that moment when she was begging Pat France to marry her. She barely thought of Staley Drummond and the suite he had engaged on a French liner for June the fifteenth.

Nothing was real to her but Pat, his hands red-brown with sunburn, holding her wrists, and his heart beating steadily under the pocket of his shirt.

"I feel like a thief," he said, low in her ear, "taking you away from all this and giving you nothing but a lot of hard work and no fun at all. . . . We won't even have an automobile unless I can borrow one from Roy every now and then."

Lily crinkled her nose up at him and laughed. Her eyes were starry with happiness. "Oh, you foolish kid!" she said to him. "Don't you know that your piston ring is going to make us rich? I'll have everything that Staley Drummond's wife could have in a few years, and I'll have my own boy besides." She kissed her own boy on the tip of his cleft chin, and was smothered in his arms instantly, and swept from her feet in a wild embrace that left them both shaken and breathless.

"I'll go and pack up a few things, too!" she told him after a minute or two. "And we'll go right away, won't we?"

Still quivering and tingling with excitement, she ran into the house and up the back stairs to her own room.

Her mother was waiting for her. She was sitting in the window seat and in her hands she held the padded hanger that had held Lily's orchid-plant dress a few minutes before. Her eyes were narrowed until they were gleaming slits in her face, and one foot tapped the floor in nervous anger.

"I didn't come in here to spy on you, Lily," she said. "But Sarah MacCabe finished your wedding dress this morning, to the very last stitch of pearl embroidery, and I brought it in here to hang it up. . . . Then I found this"—she waved the hanger like a flag—"lying on the closet floor. And here you are in one of your trousseau dresses! Now, what did you put it on for? Just to go to say good-bye to that chauffeur out in the garage?"

"I didn't say good-bye to him," answered Lily, wide-eyed as an innocent child. "I'm not going to say good-bye to him. . . . I'm going to say good-bye to you, Mother, and to this house. I'm leaving with Pat!"

If she had struck her mother a hard blow between the eyes she could not have amazed or hurt her more. Mrs. Lexington's proud, cold face lost its look of pride and coldness in an instant. It seemed to crumple up like a withered flower, and her chin shook like a child's chin when it whimpers. The change was so swift that it was like magic.

Her hands flew to her face, pressing it hard as if she were trying to hold it in shape—to keep from breaking down and sobbing. Tears of shock sprang to her eyes.

"Lily! You don't mean it! Tell me you don't mean this!" she begged. "You mean you want to marry that—that chauffeur?"

Lily nodded, and dragged her pale-gray bags from the closet. As she bent down to do it, the looped up court-train of her wedding dress brushed her face.

She took it from its hanger and looked at it—not as if it belonged to her, but as if it were some other girl's bridal gown of white satin and soft lace and seed-pearl embroideries.

"Nice, isn't it?" she said to her mother, as if she were speaking to a casual acquaintance.

A half hour before, when she had stood in the little writing room downstairs and begged her mother to tell her what to do about Pat France, she would have been ready and willing to take advice and orders. . . . She had felt young and helpless and in need of her mother then.

But now she had made her own decision—her decision to leave the house and marry Pat France. Her decision to set a whole town talking by jilting one of its wealthiest bachelors almost at the altar, and running away with a penniless chauffeur.

She began to put her tortoise-shell-and-gold toilet articles into the smaller bag. As she did it, she heard the crisp rustle of her mother's skirts as she left the room. She sat back on her heels and watched her go in amazement.

"Well, I certainly didn't expect her to take the news so calmly," she said to herself. "I expected her to kick up an awful rumpus."

But Mrs. Lexington was far from calm, and very, very far from taking the news calmly, as Lily might have known if she had stopped to think. But she was far too happy to do any straight-line thinking herself. She was caught up into a cloud of sunny happiness, from which she saw such details as satin wedding gowns and jilting lovers as through a golden mist. Even her mother's misery did not mean very much to her just then. "Besides," she thought, "she wouldn't be happy if I married Staley and I was wretched forever after."

No, it was better for her mother to rant and cry and threaten a little bit now than it was for her to be sorry later that she had stopped her from marrying the man of her choice, even if he was a poor man. . . . Much better.

"And money can't mean so much to me after all," Lily went on thinking, as she packed three tubelike dresses and three sets of silk underthings into the big pale-gray suit case. "For I don't feel very blue about leaving everything behind and going to live on bread and cheese and kisses."

But she never had tried bread and cheese and kisses. She knew nothing about poverty, never having tasted that, either.

And she certainly did not know herself! Most people don't until they're down on their luck. She never had been. . . .

Lugging the two bags, she went down the back stairs into the yard. As she reached the back porch the sound of angry voices came to her—her mother's and Pat's. They were having a heated argument, standing in the driveway under the glare of the sun. A few feet away from them Agnes was watching them and listening to them, eyes, ears and mouth wide open.

"—It's the only fair thing to do!" Lily caught the tail end of something her mother was saying. "And I insist that you do it. She doesn't know her own mind. You're simply sweeping her off her feet and you know it!" She brought her palms together smartly.

Pat's lips tightened. "All right, have it your own way, Mrs. Lexington," he said, with a politeness that did not hide his anger. "But if I'd wanted to sweep her from her feet, I could have done it eight weeks ago. And I didn't. There were times when I wouldn't let her get into my cab. When I lied to her—told her I was busy and drove away. But I'll do what you ask me to, although I think it's a silly thing to ask."

Lily came up to him. He had taken off his working clothes and looked very handsome in a dark blue suit and a gray felt hat. He put his arm around her.

"Your mother doesn't want us to get married for twenty-four hours," he said, looking down at her lovely flushed face pillowed on his shoulder. Quite shamelessly she raised it to him for a kiss before she spoke.

"Why not?" she asked. (To Be Continued.)

8:30—12:30 is a strenuous time in the well-run household!

Does your breakfast sustain you as it should?

According to recent investigations made by the big women's magazines, 70% or more of the hardest household activities take place in the four morning hours.

No wonder so many women are tired out by lunch-time; too tired to enjoy the leisurely later hours of the day!

Much of this fatigue could be prevented, authorities say, by breakfasts that "stand by you." After a long night's fast, we must have sustaining food to carry us through these strenuous hours.

To make their morning vitality last longer, thousands of women have taken to a breakfast of Quick Mother's Oats.

This rich, sustaining food is a real help towards better mornings—because it is such excellently balanced nourishment. It provides not only energy and tissue-building materials—but minerals and vitamins essential to health, and tender bran, so valuable for roughage.

If you have never tasted Quick Mother's Oats, you will notice at once its unusual fineness of flavor. As delicate as tender nutmeats! Careful milling of a selected kind of oats brings about this difference.

A Doctor Talks About Cascara

It is unfortunate that many people judge the thoroughness of a laxative by its violence. The salts that rush through the system may not even penetrate the film of the colon. A long list of drugs will "loosen the bowels" but what is the best way to CLEANSE them?

The world's best laxative is one that Mother Nature makes in her own laboratory. It is the bark of a tree, called CASCARA. The Indians used to chew this bark—and reach old age without a sick day. It is the best thing there is today, for any system; best for the blood. The most beneficial in its action on the bowels, of anything yet disclosed. For many reasons:

HALITOSIS? KILL IT!

Seven times in ten, Halitosis is due to a sour, gassy stomach, caused by intestinal stasis, "constipation." People with halitosis (unpleasant breath) are shunned, avoided, because they are like a "plague"—friends just can't endure being near such a person. Old and young, rich and poor, none escape.
